THE AUSTRIAN BAND, WEDNESDAY NIGHT, will perform The "Freischutz" Overture, by Weber.

THE AUSTRIAN BAND, WEDNESDAY NIGHT, will perform the AVE MARIA, by Gounod, pronounced by the Press as the richest musical treat ever offered to Sydney audiences.

THE AUSTRIAN BAND, WEDNESDAY NIGHT, will perform Gluck's celebrated Overture "Iphigenia in Aulis," and, by special desire the grand, Potpourri of Austrian and German Songs.

NOTICE.

The numerous encores demanded by delighted audiences have greatly disturbed the arrangements for conveyances from the Concerts of

by delaying those who have to take trains and omnibuses until late hours. The programme will, therefore, be necessarily reduced to eight pieces, thus giving the public time to enjoy the great musical treat thoroughly without being put to any inconvenience after the concert.

Department of Public Instruction, Sydney,
31st January, 1881.

TENDERS FOR ERECTION OF NEW SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

TENDERS are invited for the erection of new Public School Buildings, at Greenwich.

Plans and specifications may be seen, and forms of tender obtained, at the Office of the Department of Public Instruction, Sydney.

Tenders, endorsed "Tender for erection of new buildings for Greenwich Public School," must be lodged with the Under-Secretary, Department of Public Instruction, at or before 10 o'clock a.m. on TUESDAY, the 1st March, 1881.

The Minister does not bind himself to accept the lowest or any tender.

JOHN ROBERTSON.

Post and Telegraph Department, Brisbane,
3rd February, 1881.

MAIL SERVICE BETWEEN MARYBOROUGH, BUNDABERG, AND GLADSTONE.

TENDERS will be received at this office until noon of MONDAY, the 14th March next, for the conveyance of mails, by steamer, between Maryborough, Bundaberg, and Gladstone, to meet the monthly outward and inward vessels of the Queensland Royal Mail Line.

Steamers to be approved by the Postmaster-General.

Tenders to state the name of the vessel or vessels with which the service is proposed to be conducted, horse-power, and tonnage.

Tenders to specify the rate per annum for one or more years.

The service to be performed in accordance with a time-table approved by the Postmaster-General.

A penalty will be inflicted for every delay in departure from Maryborough or Gladstone, in addition to the forfeiture of the contract money for any period during which the contract is not performed.

Every Tender must bear the bona fide signatures of the tenderer and two responsible persons willing to become bound with him in such a sum as the Postmaster-General may direct, not exceeding the gross amount of the contract.

The contract shall not be assigned or underlet without the consent, in writing, of the Postmaster-General.

The Government will not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

Further information may be obtained on application at this Office.

The Hon. Edward Langton.
The Hon. James Lorimer, M.L.C.
Rupert Ryder, Esq. (Messrs. Ryder Bros.)
W. K. Thomson, Esq. (Messrs. Jas. M'Ewan and Co.)

This company has been formed to purchase the Island of Mango, one of the Fiji group, and to carry on the plantations there.

The Island is the property of the Messrs. Ryder Brothers, by whom it has been cultivated since 1864. The title is a grant from the Crown.

Cotton has been the chief product hitherto, but as the soil is admirably suited for sugar, it is intended to plant cane forthwith, and to purchase the necessary machinery.

Mr. W. K. Thomson and Mr. Langton have inspected the property, and detailed particulars of the financial results of the plantation have been submitted to Mr. Langton.

The Messrs. Ryder will retain one-fifth interest (1000 shares) in the company; 3000 shares have already been allotted; the remaining 1000 shares are now offered to the public at a premium of £5 per share—£1 payable on application, £7 on allotment, and £9 in three calls of £3 each, at 6, 12, and 18 months thereafter.

It is not anticipated that any further calls will be required.

The premiums will go to the credit of the company.

THOMAS CARLYLE.

Thomas Carlyle is dead. His works will not die. It is not often given to men of letters to live to see the effect their writings have produced on their generation. Some great writers die in the prime of life, and others are only just beginning to be appreciated before they are called away; but Carlyle has produced his greatest impression during his lifetime; and though his influence may be long-lived, no subsequent generation will be more touched than was his own. Carlyle is one of the many great men whom we owe to Scotland; to Scotch nurture, and to the hard yet kindly training which Auld Scotia gives to her children. Trained to patient intellectual labour and severe industry, taught to expect success as the result of toil, he never expected to startle the world at once, and capture it by a coup de main, and he worked his way slowly, though surely, towards his end. With him the intellectual life has not been an idle life, nor even one of fitful and desultory labour; and he has left behind him a model of severe and conscientious work.

Like the earlier Mill, he was trained in the school of Scotch metaphysics and theology. But the Mills, both father and son, were wanting in imagination, and both failed on that account deeply to stir their generation, though they commanded the homage due to great intellectual force. During part of its history, Scotland affected a great alliance with France in preference to one with England, just as some Americans do now-a-days; and the metaphysics of both Scotland and France have been modified by this union. But the genius of Scotland has really more of kinship with that of Germany than with that of France; and of this Carlyle was one of the great expositors. He did for German poetry and for the German cast of thought and expression what Coleridge did for some of the ideas of German philosophy—he assimilated them and reproduced them. But while Coleridge taught the English that the regenerator of philosophic thought was to be found in Kant, Carlyle taught that the regenerator of the philosophy of life was to be found in Goethe. To a Germanised idiom he surrendered himself, and preferred to think and speak in that form of phrase. His earlier writings, like his life of Schiller, were written in simple, clear, and beautiful English; but he did not thoroughly rivet the attention of his contemporaries till he allowed himself the full advantage of thinking out loud in the rugged nervous style which his studies had made the mould of his mind. He was enabled in this way to give to his thought the vividness, the abruptness, the startling contrast and the suggestiveness which he craved, with, at the same time, a great economy of words. If any one wants to try what is the effect of his peculiar diction, let him translate any celebrated passage out of Carlylese into ordinary English, and trace the effect. In his great model, Goethe, however, he found no example of this whimsical style. There is more suggestion of it in Jean Paul Richter; but it is not an imitation of any one: it is the result of a strong, determined, original mind, saturated with German literature, determined on casting its thoughts in its own mould, and not in the prescribed literary forms. Carlyle found some difficulty in working his way in ordinary journalism with what appeared to be his uncouth phraseology. He made several contributions to the Edinburgh Review, till at last an article entitled "Characteristics," which was too tough a piece of reading for the patrons of a journal which had accustomed its subscribers to the easy reading of Sydney Smith and Francis Jeffrey, brought his connection with the great Whig periodical to a close. There were limits to the endurance of a public which liked to read at a hand-gallop. In another English journal, viz., Fraser's Magazine, appeared the work which first brought his peculiar style and his special cast of thought before the world, viz., "Sartor Resartus." One of the subscribers, who could not see any meaning in it, wrote to the editor to know when that stupid story about the tailor was going to be finished. The appreciative readers were at first few, for indeed the "philosophy of clothes" was not at first apparent to a generation to whom the style of thought and expression was new. But by degrees the meaning became unfolded, and the thinking world felt the presence of a philosopher who could deal with something else than abstractions. This book was, indeed, the first disclosure of Carlyle's way of looking at men and things, and by it he first got his firm grip of the English public. In it, too, he gave proof of his grim humour, and of his extraordinary power of packing away a vast amount of meaning in a few words. Under the quaint guise of Teufelsdrockh's experiences and meditations, he ranged over the scale of human creed, from superstition to no-belief, and set his thoughtful readers meditating on the worth and worthlessness of customs and creeds of all kinds. To the young, especially, the book came like a revelation; and while those who were hardened in their ways of thinking scorned the barbarisms of the new teacher, the more receptive hailed him as a master. He never formed an absolute school of his own; but he did what was better, he stimulated the activity of powerful minds in many quarters, and he had for his disciples original thinkers, who learnt from him while they differed from him. In America, Emerson was recognised as intellectually a lineal descendant, while at the Universities he had pupils into whose minds his words sank deep.

A different kind of literary power, but with an equally philosophic insight, was displayed in his "History of the French Revolution." For pictorial power this book has never been surpassed. The men and the scenes stand out on the canvas living realities, while, without any formal moralising, the lessons of the story are burned into the narrative. Human life, individually and collectively, was the theme of Carlyle's song from first to last, and in this great prose poem he had ample scope for picturing human nature in one of its most unconventional manifestations. He tried history again in his "Life of Frederick," but not with the same success. Of course the book is profound, accurate, and exhaustive, and the descriptions are life-like. The real sources of Frederick's power, and the causes of his success, are laid bare, and the work is, from first to last, in the highest degree instructive. But yet it is somewhat ponderous, and it has not been read and re-read like its predecessor.

His miscellaneous essays, his biographies, and his studies of individual men, are wonderful pieces of descriptive and analytic criticism, and show how keenly he had studied human nature, and what a fine sense he had of intellectual capacity. But when he came to apply his powers and his ideas to contemporary politics, he was less successful than when describing and analysing the past; and his political pamphlets are, perhaps, the least valuable of his works. They are full of power and of striking and original remarks. But they are marred by extravagances, and sometimes by misjudgments. It was nothing to him that he was not en rapport with the spirit of his age, for no man ever less stooped to court popularity, and no sterner censor ever lashed the follies of his contemporaries. He took unpopularity and popularity with equal stoicism. But he erred in too much idolising force and the success that force brings, and his teaching on this point will be tempered by a higher worship. The positivists claim to be the heirs of the coming age, and their school has rather disparaged Carlyle. But they will fail to depose him, for they lack the imagination and the enthusiasm that made the Chelsea seer's words go straight to the hearts of his countrymen. His writings will last as long as the language, and human nature must alter before Carlyle ceases to be an intellectual power.

From "Men of the Time" we take the following biographical sketch of Mr. Carlyle:—

"Carlyle, Thomas, essayist, biographer, and historian, was born in 1795, at Ecclefechan, a small village in Dumfriesshire, where his father, a man of intellect and earnest religious feeling, held a small farm; and received the rudiments of his education at Annan. At the age of fourteen he entered the University of Edinburgh, passing through a regular curriculum, and studying mathematics under Professor Leslie. Intended by his parents for the ministry, he remained at the University upwards of seven years, spending his vacations among the hills and by the rivers of Dumfriesshire. At College his habits were lonely and contemplative. After teaching mathematics in a school in Fifeshire for about two years, he determined to devote himself to literature, and in 1823 commenced his career by contributing to Brewster's Edinburgh Encyclopedia some able articles on 'Montesquieu,' 'Montaigne,' 'Nelson,' and the 'Two Pitts,' and literary notices to the New Edinburgh Review. In the same year he completed a translation of Legendre's 'Geometry,' to which he prefixed an 'Essay on Proportion,' and published his translation of Goethe's 'Wilhelm Meister,' a work which showed a direction of reading destined to influence materially his future career. On the completion of this translation he commenced his 'Life of Schiller,' which was published by instalments in the London Magazine, then sustained by the talents of Lamb, Hazlitt, De Quincey, Hood, John Scott, and A. Cunningham. For Goethe and Schiller, two of the 'true sovereign souls of German literature,' his admiration has ever been unbounded, and his letters to Goethe have appeared in the poet's published correspondence. Having married in 1827, he resided alternately at Comely Bank and Craigenputtock, a small estate fifteen miles to the north-west of Dumfries. In this secluded spot he occasionally contributed to

CUSTOM HOUSE.—Entered Outwards, February 7: Cairnsmuir (s.), 1123 tons, Captain G. L. Castle, for Hongkong; Meath (s.), 1357 tons, Captain J. Johnson, for Melbourne; Kellowarra (s.), 497 tons, Captain J. M. Smith, for Brisbane; Maryborough, and Bockhampton; Royal Duke, schooner, 103 tons, Captain D. Williams, for Townsville.

The iron clipper ship Min-y-don, Captain Castles, which was reported off Jervis Bay on Saturday afternoon, did not arrive until yesterday afternoon, owing to having to stand off the coast in a heavy gale and thick weather during Saturday and Sunday. The breeze set in at S.S.E. and went round to the westward. The ship commenced the voyage at London on November 2, landed the pilot off Portland on the 8th, passed the Lizard on the 8th, and experienced heavy westerly gales, with dull gloomy weather, for the following ten days; got the S.E. trades in latitude 28° N., and after being very light and easterly they were lost in latitude 10° N. Experienced light southerly winds across the variables. Crossed the equator on December 8th, in longitude 29° W., and took the S.E. trades on the following day; carried them to latitude 18° S., and from there experienced light N.E. winds; crossed the meridian of Greenwich on December 30, in latitude 39·50 S., and passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope on January 3; and light variable winds, ranging from N.E. to S., were experienced in passing down the easting. Passed the Crozet Islands on January 11th, and on the 24th was in the meridian of Cape Leuwin; rounded the south cape of Tasmania on January 31, and was off Cape St. George on February 5. The Min-y-don was towed into port by the steamers Commodore and Mystery, and anchored below Garden Island.

The Elizmang (s.) left Cooktown at 9.30 a.m. on the 29th January, called at intermediate ports, arrived at Brisbane at midnight on the 3rd instant, sailed from Brisbane at 11.15 a.m. on the 5th, and arrived at wharf at 3 p.m. on the 7th. Had light easterly winds and fine weather to Cleveland Bay, and strong south-easterly and southerly winds and head sea and much rain the remainder of the passage.

The Leura (s.) cleared Port Phillip Heads at 5 p.m. on February 5, and entered Port Jackson at 2 p.m. on the 7th. Experienced southerly and S.E. sales to Gabo, with a very heavy cross sea, thence to Sydney Heads southerly gale and heavy sea, accompanied with rain squalls.

The Ly-ee-Moon (s.) cleared Port Phillip Heads on February 5, at 7.40 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads on the 7th, at 4.30 p.m. Experienced moderate southerly wind to Promontory; light and moderate E. and E.S.E. wind and sea to Gabo Island; thence moderate and fresh southerly wind and sea, with thick, drizzling weather to arrival.

The City of Grafton (s.) left Grafton on February 5 at 8 a.m.; and arrived in Sydney on the 7th at 2.30 a.m. Experienced northerly winds to South Solitary, strong southerly with rain through remainder of passage. Cargo: 374 bags maize, 165 bags tin ore, 481 ingots, 65 mats sugar, 17 bales wool, 2 bales sheepskins, 70 hides, 4 casks tallow, 11 casks molasses, 15 cases eggs, 8 coops fowls, 37 bags oysters, 2243 bunches bananas, and sundries.

The Corakl (s.), crossed the Richmond Bar on Friday, the 4th instant, at 1.10 p.m.; put into Nelson's Bay for shelter on Saturday, at 6 p.m., it then blowing a hard southerly gale, with a very heavy sea; left again at 6 a.m. on Monday; arrived in Sydney at 6.10 p.m., same day. Cargo: 40 000 feet ice timber, 35,000 feet sawn pine and cedar, 300 bags maize, 150 mats sugar, 47 hides, 6 cases eggs, 5 coops fowls.

The R.M.S. Peshawur, from Point de Galle January 20 via Albany and Adelaide, arrived at Hobson's Bay at 7.40 a.m. yesterday.

The Resolute, ship, from Sydney to London, was spoken by the Palada, barque, from London to Port Chalmers, on January 18.

Messrs. Gilchrist, Watt, and Co. are in receipt of a cablegram advising departure of s.s. Cotopaxi from Plymouth at 1 p.m. 5th instant.

The Wakatipu (s.) left Wellington at noon on Saturday for Sydney.

During the passage of the Corakl (s.) from Lismore, on Sunday morning, Mrs. Buxton, a saloon passenger, when in the act of dressing herself dropped dead.

The Tasman (s.), from Hobart, passed Gabo Island, bound North, at 6.40 a.m. yesterday.

The Glenelg (s.), from Adelaide, passed Twofold Bay, bound North, yesterday afternoon.

THE FATE OF GREAT DISCOVERERS.—The four American claimants of the grand discovery of sandheds were Jackson, Long, Morton, and Wells. The fate of these men was very unfortunate. Long died in 1878, very little known, and a poor man. Morton, having been reduced to poverty during the twelve years in which he tried to obtain from Congress and the courts a recognition of his rights, died suddenly in New York City of cerebral congestion, brought on by reading a work attacking his claims. Wells's mind failed in the fierce controversy; and after his arrest in New York, for throwing vitriol on women's clothing, he destroyed himself. Jackson died on August 30, after seven years' illness, during which his mind was shrouded with agitation and disappointment.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY EVENING.

There was a very large amount of business reported in the Stock and Share market to-day, prices still having an upward tendency. In Banks, Joint Stock were quitted at 17½ and 17¾, with sellers at close at 18, buyers at 17⅝; for City 13½ and 13¾ given; Commercial were dealt in at 108, with buyers at close at 107½, and no sellers—for new issue 99 offered; Mercantile realized 6⅛; New South Wales were quitted at 58⅞ and 58½, buyers afterwards at 58⅜, sellers 59½; for New Zealand, 23 and 22⅝ given, and 22¾ then offered: Union were held for 69, buyers at 67; Queensland National obtainable at 8½, buyers at 8⅜. In Steam, Australasian were dearer—buyers at 19, sellers 20; for Clarence and Richmond, 3¾ offered, no sellers—preferent stock were held for 14, buyers 13; Hunter River were held for 10½, buyers 9⅝; for Illawarra, 6¼ offered; and for North Shore Ferry, 17s. 6d., but no sellers of either. In Insurance, Accident had sellers at 1s. 6d., buyers 1s.; City Mutual wanted at 1s., sellers at 1s. 4d.; Mercantile Mutual had sellers at 1s. 6d., but no buyers; for Pacific 71s. given, buyers afterwards at 71s. 6d., sellers 73s.; General obtainable at 92s., but no buyers; for Sydney Marine 40s. offered, seller at 42s.; 50s. offered for United, but no sellers; Australian Mutual wanted at 8s. Australian Gaslight were quitted at 14⅞, for new issue 7⅞ offered without finding sellers. Sydney Exchange and Pyrmont Bridge wanted at 9⅞ and 6⅞ respectively. Shale and Oil realized 10s. 3d. and offered at the same. Volunteer land orders obtainable at 137, buyers 133. For Coffee Palace 19s. offered, 22s. asked. In Coal, 12 asked for Bulli, but no buyers; for Wallsend 13½ given; and for Waratah 6⅞; Vale of Clwydd were thrust, holders asking 19s., buyers at 18s. 3d. Great Cobar Copper had sellers at 21s., buyers at 20s. For Krohmann's 5s. 6d. asked, 2s. 3d. offered; Star of Peace had sellers at 6s., buyers at 3s. For Band and Albion Consols 6¾ asked, 6¼ offered. There were buyers of New South Wales Funded Stock at 97, but no sellers.

Messrs. T. J. Thompson and Son report the yield from the Queen's Birthday Company, Dunolly, for the fortnight, to be 535 oz. 18 dwts. from 830 tons of stone crushed. The yield from the Band and Albion gold mine for the past week amounted to 368 oz., from 720 tons of stone.

The annual meeting of the Mercantile Mutual Insurance Company was held to-day; Mr. John Pope presiding. The report showed that the net premiums for the year amounted to £12,293, the interest on investments to £777, which, being added to £999, the balance from last account, and to £3500 transferred from reserve fund, gave £17,570. Against this there were:—Shareholders' interest, £400; fire losses, £10,985; cost of re-insuring outstanding risks in other colonies (branches now closed), £1387; expenses and cost of management, £5280,—making, £18,003; and leaving a debit balance of £433. The report was adopted. Messrs. G. Allen Mansfield and C. C. Skarratt were re-elected directors, and Messrs. W. P. Manning and J. C. Taylor auditors. The meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the directors and officers.

The half-yearly meeting of the Protestant Hall Company was held to night; Alderman S. E. Lees in the chair. The half-year's receipts amounted to £440 from rents and donations, and the expenses had been £385, leaving a gain of £104. 447 shares had been disposed of, upon which £267 had been paid. A bank overdraft had been paid, and a credit balance of £235 remained. A mortgage had to be renewed in July next, and the directors contemplated reducing it to the extent of £1000. The report was adopted. Messrs. N. J. Mackenzie, A. Walker, A. M'Neill, and J. R. Norris were re-elected directors, and Messrs. W. T. Jacombs and J. Peell were appointed auditors. A vote of thanks was passed to the directors and officers.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Queensland National Bank, held at Brisbane on the 31st ultimo, the report to 31st December showed net profits amounting to £38,891, and balance from previous half-year £2761; which, less £2379 (the amount of tax on note circulation), gave £34,273, out of which a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, absorbing £22,528, was declared; £10,000 was placed to reserve (making £110,000), and £1744 was carried forward. It is stated that a branch at Sydney will be opened shortly. Mr. B. D. Morehead, M.L.C., was re-elected a director of the company.

In the Import market a quiet day was noted. Flour was somewhat easier, although no change in quotations can be made. At auction Messrs. Mort and Co. quitted a catalogue of wheat at from 4s. to 4s. 5d. per bushel, exclusive of bags. Privately, New South Wales wheat is selling at 4s. 2d. In teas we note sales of medium qualities at from 45s. to 70s. From Messrs. Russell and Co.'s circular, dated Foochow, December 20th, received per Meath, we learn that "the tea market continued quiet. A steady business had been transacted in rather flavory kinds of congou at former quotations, the demand being principally for the Australian markets. Settlements amounted to 10,045 chests, at 6 tls. for dust and 10.25 tls., to 17 short. Quotations were:—Dust and siftings 6 to 9 tls. short; common to rather flavory 10½ to 12½ tls. short; flavory to medium 13 to 17 tls. The arrivals had been 811,053 chests for 1880-81, as against 729,000 chests for 1879-80. The settlements, 829,953 chests in 1880-81, as against 738,410 chests in 1879-80; and the stocks, 11,100 chests in 1880-81, as against 560 chests in 1879-80. Some 300 boxes of scented teas had been settled at unchanged rates, leaving the stocks at 4200 boxes. The total shipments to Australia were 20,866,200 lbs., as against 14,711,781 lbs. at the same date last season, the shipments to Sydney having been 8,588,425 lbs., as compared with 5,443,359 lbs. in 1879." The market for sugars continues firm, and we note the quittance of a parcel of low white at 23s. The cargo of the Warrior will, we understand, be sold privately. In dried fruits, currants are quoted at 6d. to arrive, and 6¾d. on the spot; valencias are unobtainable. Cook's salmon was sold at 7s. 9d. Liverpool Block Horse salt, to land, was quitted at £4; fine salt brought £5 10s. In tinned stores, we note a good demand for pickles and piccalilli at full figures; Champion's draught vinegar was sold at 1s. 10d. In liquors, there was inquiry for second-class bulk brandies; Red Heart rum was sold at 21s. The best brands of ale and beer are meeting a fair demand at late quotations. In metals, we hear of the placing of a parcel of Samson fencing wire at a full figure; I. C. Coke tinplates had sale at 20s. 6d.; Stork galvanized iron was placed at £24. There is not much animation in the produce market to-day, owing, no doubt, to the rain. The quantity of forage forward at the Darling Harbour sales was small, the attendance of buyers meagre, and prices showed no alteration in those obtained on Friday. On the wharfs fucerne hay is duller, if possible, than ever, and sales are only effected with difficulty at quotations—viz., £2 10s. to £2 15s. Potatoes are unchanged. Hunter River being worth from £2 10s. to £3; Warrnambool, £4 to £4 10s.; and Shoalhaven, £3 to £3 10s. The few onions coming from the Hunter are very inferior, and supplies will have to be obtained from Victoria. Fortunately, the Victorian onions at present in the market are very good, and sales are readily effected at prices ranging from £4 10s. to £5. Maize has been coming forward in quantities sufficient for requirements, and there is no alteration in price to report. Eggs are plentiful at from 9d. to 1s. per dozen.

Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin offered 1000 bales of wool at auction this afternoon; including lots sold privately about 500 were disposed of. The greater part of the wool now submitted is of medium and low quality, for which the demand is weak, and the prices lower. Scoured wool has been more inquired for during the past fortnight. Medium to fair quality fleece realized 14d. to 16½d.; greasy, 7d. to 9¾d., scoured medium lots only being quitted from 10½d. to 16¼d. The following lots will give an idea of value, viz.:—Fleece, M, at 15d.; WJD, at 14½d.; ASB, at 15¾d., JCS, at 14½d.; GM, at 16d. Greasy, WJ, at 7¾d.; ASM, at 9½d.; MC, at 9½d.; WB in oblong, at 10½d.; DMD, at 8d.; EB, at 8½d.; GW over SW, at 8 practicable. Junee is 287 miles from Sydney, and the charge is 9s. per bale. Orange is 192 miles from Sydney, and Gunnedah 196 from Newcastle, and the charge from both places is also 9s. per bale. But when the Western and the Northern lines respectively reach the Darling and the Queensland border, the charges for the longer distances will be proportionally reduced, as on the Southern line. The new wool rates, however, have been altered in the direction of making carriage dearer on the Western and Northern lines, and cheaper on the Southern. That may be due partly to the character of the lines and the quantity of traffic passing over them. Still, it is a departure from our previous policy, and may be another result of the mattress of tariffs.

Tested by the main criterion of equal justice to all classes of our own people, the new reductions need a justification they have not yet received. The Commissioner has told us already that lines which go the remote districts pay worst, and virtually recommended higher charges on some of them. But now he is making reductions which begin only at a distance of 100 miles, so that the lines which yield a profit are to have no relief, while those on which the annual loss is incurred are to be still further benefited at the expense of the rest. There is but one reason the department can plead for its action. Low freights may develop traffic rapidly, and, as the lines are made, it is better to use them even for no more than working expenses than let them lie idle. But Mr. GOODCHAP has told us previously that the increase in traffic bore no proportion to the reductions in freights. Since then he may have obtained fuller information. Our railways are now entering into the great producing districts of the interior, and their cost of construction is low compared with the older lines. There is produce enough to make them remunerative, and as that produce is the source of so many private fortunes, there should be no need for making its carriage a burden upon the public purse.

The members of the Legislative Assembly need to be amateur engineers, for not only have they the Sydney water supply scheme to determine, but they are also called upon to discuss the system of sewerage—at least, that part of the system which relates to the proposed sewage farm in the neighbourhood of Shea's Creek. The construction of the main arterial drain to Bondi seems to be for the present in abeyance, but dealing with Shea's Creek is an urgent matter. The Government is willing enough to take it up promptly, but it is put under pressure by two opposite parties. The creek in its upper course, once a pure brook, has become an open sewer, and those who live near it are very anxious to see it become a covered sewer, and the contents discharged further down; but those who have property further down object to this, as calculated to increase the nuisance to them. The proposal of the Government Commission was to spread the sewage over a piece of land, and so filter it, and at the same time increase its fertilizing value. Mr. CLARK gave his approval to this project as an experiment, and as calculated to save immediate expense. English sanitary engineers are still very much divided in their opinions over the disposal of sewage; but Mr. CLARK sided with those who think that where it is possible to shoot the sewage into the sea, and get rid of it, that is the cheapest way. It is not very easy, however, to divert the Shea's Creek sewerage into the sea. If it is to go into the great main drain it must be all pumped up, and that arrangement must wait till the main drain is finished. There is fall enough in the ground to carry a sewer down by the line of the creek, and discharge the contents into Cook's River or Botany Bay, near the mouth of the river. But this would be to discharge it into very shallow water, and where the receding tide exposes a very large amount of foreshore. To spread sewage matter over that would probably create as great a nuisance as the one it is sought to get rid of. The sewage farm has been proposed as an alternative, but before it can be adopted there must be satisfactory evidence on two points—first, that there is enough ground to absorb the quantity of sewage; and secondly, that it is not saturated with either fresh or salt water, so as to render it unsuitable for a natural filter.

It has been remarked that to attempt a sewage farm in this place will furnish an excellent opportunity for trying an experiment that may be of very great value to inland towns. That is true; but at the same time those who are threatened with a possible nuisance may reasonably ask that the experiment should not be tried at their cost. According to the plans, the proposed sewage farm is some twenty feet or more above the level of high water; but sand is so absorbent of water that it would probably be necessary to subsoil-drain the whole area, so as to secure a rapid percolation through the soil of the liquid portion of the sewerage.

In dealing with this question it may, perhaps, also be as well for the Government to inquire how far the plan of silt-pits can be made to deal with the difficulty, if only as a temporary arrangement. It is impossible to be indifferent to the earnest entreaty of the Surry Hills people to do something to abate the existing nuisance. But if the sewage farm is abandoned, and the main drain is constructed down to Cook's River, some plan must be adopted of purifying the effluent water, and we might just as well try that plan higher up, as, after all, the expense has been incurred of constructing a long drain. The problem is confessedly a difficult one, and it is one in which nearly every inland town in the colony is interested. They will all be forced before long into some form of drainage works, and it is a matter of very great importance to ascertain whether on the whole it is better to put the sewage on the land, and let the earth solve the difficulty, or to disinfect the effluent water, and desiccate the residuum. The Shea's Creek difficulty is by no means peculiar to that portion of the city, as it is practically the same as we have to deal with at the head of all the bays of the harbour. Until the great sewer to Bondi is built, we badly want some satisfactory method of dealing with the drains that are discharging an increasing quantity of filth into the bays. Some members of the Legislative Council thought the other day that the vote in the Monthly Supply Bill for Rushcutter's Bay was to deal with the growing nuisance in that locality, but the money was only to buy land for the park. The watercourse that intersects the park is at present a very foul sewer, as all who have daily to cross it can testify. There is abundant open land there to give a fair trial to the system of settling-pits and the use of lime; and a fair experiment would not cost an unreasonable sum of money. At present, however, it seems nobody's business to make the experiment, though when we get the Metropolitan Board we shall have a body that would be at once empowered to take the question up.

It is, on every account, deeply to be regretted that the House of Commons should have been witness to such a scene as the expulsion of the obstructive Irish members. It is difficult for a large Assembly to keep itself calm under such provocation; and there is always a risk of things being said and done which will afterwards be regretted. But the act of expulsion had become absolutely inevitable, and however regrettable in itself, there would have been much more cause for regret if the House had not asserted itself. Appeal after appeal had been made in vain to the obstructionists to accept their position as a minority, to yield to the force arrayed against them, and to wait for the time when their principles, if sound, would win the support of a majority. They have refused to be beaten in debate; they have asserted their right to stop the public business, and, in fact, to destroy the Parliament of the country. Whatever rights they may have as a matter of conscience, or as a matter of patriotism, they have not more than other members have; and if they think it to be their duty to arrest the progress of Parliamentary business, the majority are equally entitled to think it their duty that Parliamentary business should go on. Members are gathered together at Westminster, not to be baulked, but to do the service of the State; and if any set of men band themselves together, determined that the service of the State shall not be done, they are simply in insurrection against the law and custom of Parliament. That law and custom, like the common law of England, is elastic, and can apply itself to new circumstances. In all cases such as that which has arisen, and where there are no precedents for a guide, recourse must be had to first principles. Parliament is called together to do the work of Parliament. It must be the guardian of its own interests, and it must in extreme emergencies make law for itself. It must carry on its work, and it must do whatever is rendered necessary in order that that work may be carried on. The expulsion of the obstructives was simply a natural sequel to the previous cloture. If it was right to stop talking when rational debate had ceased, it was right to remove any further obstruction out of the way of passing the bill. The greater the obstacle that the riotous members raised, the greater was the necessity for compulsion to overcome that obstacle. If they were resolved to go to the last extremity to hinder assembled members from acting as a Parliament, then they forced the majority to go to similarly extreme lengths. The expulsion will very likely be hailed by the hot-headed and irreconcilable section of Irish agitators as a fresh grievance; but so far as all reasonable and fair-minded people are concerned, the effect will be to damage the cause which precipitated such a strife. Men who act so passionately and so unreasoningly cast a doubt on the soberness of their policy, and prejudice the public mind against them.

Until lately it has been a question for debate whether there should be an Illawarra railway. The progress of events and the advance of opinion seem to have settled that point, and the disputed question now is, by what route shall the future line be carried into Sydney. The properties in different parts of the intervening district being in different hands, there is a want of unanimity as to which course would best serve the public interest. Meetings have been held on the one side and on the other. A short time back a deputation urged upon the Minister the claims of a line from Macdonaldtown, via St. Peters and Cook's River. Last week there was a meeting of inhabitants of Gannon's Forest, for the advocacy of a line through that district. On this last occasion it was pleasing to see how strong a belief there was in the concurrence of public with private interests, and how candidly the speakers expressed their preference for a line that would pass their own back doors. Many people try to disguise their private interests under a pretence of public ones; and the residents in Gannon's Forest deserve credit for their candour. It is well that the merits of all the rival routes should be set forth fully, in order that the Government may decide in the light of full information. The more westerly line is said to have the advantages of an easy crossing for George's River, and of traversing some elevated land which would provide sites for suburban residences. For a more easterly line it is contended that the course would be more direct, and comparatively level, and that it would bring the finest beach near Sydney into easy access. The Government has to consider for what purpose the line is to be made. Is the principal object to provide carriage for the coal and produce of the Illawarra district? If so, it is against that purpose to lengthen the line, and to cause all the traffic unnecessarily to run uphill and down again. Is the aim rather to lay the foundations of a large suburban passenger traffic? Then the consideration of elevated sites would have weight. But in that case, why not exploit some of the higher localities beyond Randwick, where there is plenty of Church and School land for sale; and the State would recover the cost of the railway. On the whole, the safe principle where there is a main line for minerals and produce is to make it as direct and cheaply workable as possible, and to provide for suburban requirements by tramways or branch lines, instead of putting a drag upon all the through traffic for all time. The lighter the gradients for a mineral line the better; but for suburban residences elevated localities have a great claim.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE statement contained in one of our cablegrams this morning, that there has been a marked diminution of agrarian and other crimes in Ireland since it became known that the Government intended to adopt repressive measures, goes far to support the view taken by many English journals that the Government did not exhibit in the first instance sufficient determination in the measures it took for the suppression of Irish disorders. There would have been fewer sufferers from the system of "Boycotting," which the Land Leaguers have adopted, and from the terrorism that has been exercised by the excited malcontents almost with impunity, if the instigators and perpetrators of the many misdeeds that have been chronicled could at the outset of their lawlessness have been as easily overawed as they appear now to have been. During the past fortnight, our message goes on to relate, there has been a complete absence of any outrages. With regard to the fresh trouble on the western coast of Africa, it appears that the hostility of the Ashantees towards the British was provoked by the Governor of Sierra Leone refusing to surrender a native chief who had taken refuge within British territory. Our cable messages also announce the death of Thomas Carlyle, in his 86th year. In another part of this issue we give a critical notice of this distinguished biographer and historian.

THE English mails, dated London, 31st December last, per P. and O. Co.'s steamer Peshawur, reached Melbourne yesterday morning, and our portion of the mails will be received in time for delivery on Wednesday morning at about 9 o'clock.

THE Legislative Assembly—which adjourned on the 28th ultimo, to afford members an opportunity of attending the demonstrations in connection with the opening of the railway extensions to Dubbo and to Albury—meets again this afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

A SUPPLEMENT to the Government Gazette gives the third quarterly list of horse and cattle brands for 1880 that have been accepted or allotted to applicants.

WE learn that the Bishop of Sydney is about to leave the colony for twelve months. A complete change of air and scene was necessary; and, with a view to obtain the best results, Dr. Barker requested a consultation by Dr. Cox and Mr. Alfred Roberts, intimating that he would be guided by their decision. The consultation has taken place, and the medical gentlemen have decided to send their patient to one of the German watering-places, in the hope that he may be thoroughly restored to health. Dr. Cox and Mr. Roberts think that, in the case of the Bishop, a visit to Germany is likely to have a more sanatory influence than could be hoped for from a sojourn at one of the colonial watering-places. It is the intention of the Bishop to leave Sydney for Malta by the March mail.

THE stranding of the steamer Collaroy on the morning of January 20 formed the subject of inquiry before the Marine Board yesterday. After evidence had been given, the Board found that the stranding was caused by the wrongful act or default of R. R. Drew, the mate, for having altered the vessel's course without the authority of the master, and by the wrongful act or default of the master, Martin Thompson, in not having taken proper precautions for the safety of the vessel whilst navigating her in the vicinity of land during a fog. Messrs. Drew and Thompson are required to appear before the Board on Friday, to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled or suspended.

A MEETING of the New South Wales Cricket Association was held last evening, at Tattersall's Hotel, Pitt-street; Mr R. Teece in the chair. The hon. secretary read a cable message from the manager of the Australian Eleven, stating that the team would arrive in Sydney about the 1st March, and asking, if the Association arranged a match, that the dates should be fixed for the 4th, 5th, and 7th March. A conversational discussion took place in reference to this communication, and it was decided that further consideration should stand over until the arrival of the Victorian team, who, it was announced, were to leave Melbourne on the 9th instant. The Selection Committee reported that they had chosen the following players to meet a combined fifteen of the Northern and Western districts on Saturday next, namely:—Messrs. Allen, C. Bannerman, A. Bannerman, Evans, D. Gregory, T. Garrett, Middlestone, Jones, Massie, Robertson, Wearne, and Nunn (12th). The committee also stated that R. Hall had been substituted for A. Gregory in the intercolonial practice team, but with this exception the names remain unaltered. Mr. Swift was appointed umpire, and Mr. Weller scorer, for the match between the country players and the New South Wales eleven.

At the recent meeting at Randwick for the nomination of aldermen, one of the candidates was Mr. A. Kimberley. The presiding officer, however, declined to receive the nomination, on the ground that Mr. Kimberley held an appointment under the Corporation. The point at issue is whether an officer of a corporation may be elected as a councillor and then resign his position before taking his seat, and Mr. Kimberley took the opinion of Messrs. Allen and Allen on the question. The following is their letter:—"122, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 2nd February, 1881. A. Kimberley, Esq. Dear Sir,—Taking the case as stated by you, we are of opinion that the returning-officer was in error in refusing to accept your nomination as an alderman for the Middle Ward in the Borough of Randwick. By clause 32 of 31 Vic., c. 12, it is enacted that any male elector of any ward of a municipality, &c., shall be capable of being elected an alderman unless disqualified as therein prescribed. The next clause deals with the disqualifications, and says, among other things, that any person holding any office of profit in the disposal of the council shall be disqualified from taking or holding the office of alderman. Clause 34 enacts that no alderman shall act until he shall make a declaration in a certain form. That form states 'I, A. B., having been elected an alderman, &c., do hereby solemnly declare that I accept and take upon myself the said office, &c., &c.' It is plain, therefore, that the acceptance of the office is a subsequent act to the election, and the Act only disqualifies a person holding an office of profit from accepting and holding the office. It does not say he shall not be nominated, but he shall not accept or hold the office. As you had resigned your office prior to the day of nomination, we think you were capable of being nominated and elected, and the returning-officer should not, therefore, have refused to receive the nomination. Yours truly, ALLEN and ALLEN."

BEFORE the conclusion of the meeting of the Ashfield Borough Council, on the evening of the 31st ultimo, Alderman Fyfe rose, and in a most complimentary speech proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. D. Holborow, the retiring Mayor, who, he stated, had occupied this position for seven consecutive years, with dignity, with credit to himself, and great benefit to the borough. Alderman Hudson, in seconding the resolution, spoke in eulogistic terms of Mr. Holborow's Mayoralty, and of the great progress which had been made, placing the borough as one of the foremost of the colony. Each of the aldermen followed, and thanked his Worship for the courtesy, impartiality, and patience with which he had conducted the affairs of the Council at times when party feeling ran high. His Worship, in rising, was greeted with prolonged cheers from the aldermen, and also from a number of ratepayers who had assembled in the chamber. He thanked the aldermen for their unanimous vote, and for the generous assistance they had at all times afforded him during the seven years he had held the chair. He had always felt a pride in the position, but thought after so long an innings he would make way for some one else. He had always endeavoured to do his duty, and had been absent from two meetings only during his seven years of office. He with regret wished the aldermen good-bye, and success to the borough. After Mr. Holborow had retired the aldermen formed themselves into a committee, determined to express their kindly feelings in a tangible form.

MR. ANDREW DRYSDALE, of the firm of Briscoe, Drysdale, and Co., was the recipient of a handsome sterling silver salver, which was presented to him by his employees, on Friday evening last. The old firm of Drysdale and Roberts having been dissolved, occasion was taken by the employees to mark their esteem for Mr. Drysdale, and wish him every success in his connection with the new firm just inaugurated. Mr. Drysdale reciprocated the expressions of good will with much feeling.

A RESIDENT of Darlinghurst desires to direct attention to the disgusting practice of men engaged in the removal of night-soil commencing their work so early in the night. On Friday the men in charge of no less than three carts commenced work at 10 p.m. close to Victoria-street in Liverpool-street.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to call the attention of the Municipal Council to the highly dangerous state of the pathway leading up to Clapham Rise, Milson's Point, North Shore. Since the Roman Catholic Chapel has been renovated, he says, a new fence has been put outside it, and two large holes, stretching half-way up across the path, are left unfilled. At night-time these are very dangerous, as there is no lamp near, and a fall into one of them would probably result in broken bones. A barrow-load of rubbish would fill up these holes, and perhaps prevent serious accidents to passengers.

OUR Windsor correspondent sent us the following by telegraph last night:—"A serious stabbing affray occurred at Riverston on Saturday night, about 11 o'clock. George Elliott, a Norwegian, in the employ of Mr. Benjamin Richards, was attacked with a knife by Charles Johnston, and stabbed in the left breast, thigh, and bottom of the stomach. They had been drinking at Parrington's public-house, and had a dispute on the road going home about another party. Johnston was arrested, and the wounded man taken to the hospital, where his evidence was taken this morning. He is in a precarious state."

THE acting Coroner resumed the inquiry into the cause of the late fire at M. Rapken and Co.'s jobbing warehouse, Liverpool-street, at the Coroner's office, Hyde Park, yesterday afternoon. The whole of the time was occupied in cross-examining the witness Joel Brown, who acted as manager for Rapken. The case was adjourned at half-past 5 o'clock till Thursday next.

THE following cases amongst others were treated at the Infirmary yesterday:—John Stacey, 64 years of age, and employed as a gardener at the Glebe, slipped on the footpath, in George street, and fractured his left thigh; he was admitted. John Topey, 52 years of age, cramps, &c.; admitted. William Fogarty, aged 31, and a drayman, incipient delirium tremens; admitted.

THE following interesting account of a visit to the haunts of the flying-fox is given by a correspondent of the Maitland Mercury:—"The brush which has been appropriated by the foxes lies within a mile of Mr. Empire's selection and homestead, and leaving the horses and buggy there the gallant 25 made all haste to the camp. In sight of the foxes we settled down on the grass, and partook liberally of the good things in the shape of food provided by Mr. Holmes. After the viands had disappeared, we 'shouldered arms,' and within a very few minutes an adventurous spirit more impetuous than his fellows seeing a few of the enemy hanging from a neighbouring tree fired at them. Immediately the whole brush was alive with the disturbed foxes, which uttering alarmed cries left the shelter of the trees and commenced flying about. They, however, soon settled again, and before long—for by this time our party had scattered—gunshots were heard in every direction. After blazing away until the guns became so hot that firing had to be discontinued, we reassembled and tallied up as near as we could to see how many we had destroyed. Firing was shortly resumed, but owing to the guns getting dirty with the powder comparatively small execution was done afterwards. We reckoned that 500 flying foxes were killed outright and about as many more badly wounded and not likely to recover. For the guidance of those who may go out to destroy these pests, it may be pointed out that foxes become fatigued greatly after they have been disturbed for an hour or two, and may far more easily be approached at the latter than at the first part of the hunt, and it would be a wise precaution to get the guns cleaned out, once at any rate during the shooting, as the execution would then be very much greater. The destruction of the number mentioned seemed to have no effect in diminishing the multitude that whirled in circles over the brush, and yet of course good has been done. This season the whole of this district has suffered greatly through this plague of foxes, and it would be a boon to the settlers were this attack instituted by Mr. Holmes followed up. Tired out, with bruised cheeks, dirty guns, and empty shotbelts, the party of 'shootists' returned to their several homes, thus ending a good and useful day's sport."

THE Muswellbrook correspondent of the Maitland Mercury gives the following particulars of the accident to the goods train on Thursday night, between Muswellbrook and Aberdeen:—"As the 10.30 a.m. goods train was proceeding on its journey last night, there was a very heavy storm, and when about five miles from Muswellbrook a warning was given by the engine that there was something wrong. After going about 100 yards the tender collapsed by the sudden overturn of the engine. The rails were torn up for about 50 yards. Neither the engine driver, guard, nor stoker got hurt; how they escaped is one of those mysteries for which we cannot account. There was one passenger on the train, and he must have been asleep, because when the accident happened he sang out, "Are you stuck up?" and went to sleep again. The scene of the accident is a very pretty spot, the water coming down the mountains with a great rush, and the culvert at this point being a small one, there was not sufficient gut away for the immense body of water that came down. On visiting the scene of destruction on the same morning a curious sight presented itself to the spectators. Mr. Duffy was there, with about 70 men, engaged in clearing away the broken trucks, of which there were three smashed, and the others off the line. The engine and tender were buried in the sand on the embankment. There was no blame to be attached to any one, as the train was going at its usual pace, and the night was very dark. M'Cann, the guard, and Minch, the driver, are sober, trustworthy men.

A FATAL accident, due entirely to the carelessness of the victim, is reported in the Melbourne Daily Telegraph. It appears that on Friday a man named William M'Inerney, aged 50 years, was at the Spencer-street station, The Ballarat goods train was on the rails which he had to cross, preparatory to starting; and he, to save himself a walk of about 50 yards, endeavoured to pass under the coupling chains of two trucks as the signal was given for the train to start. Perceiving just as he was under the buffers that the train had begun to move, he tried to draw back, but fell across the rail, and one wheel passed over his chest. The train was brought to a standstill just as the next wheel pinned his chest to the rail again. He was at once picked up; but, beyond giving several gasps, showed no sign of animation, and expired almost before he was deposited upon the platform of the goods shed prior to being conveyed to the hospital, where, when he arrived, it was found that he was dead.

THE woman who, under the name of De Lacy Evans, some time since gained a shortlived notoriety, and who exhibited herself as the "man-woman," attended (says the Age) at Mr. Panton's chambers, at the City Police Court, on Thursday morning, and applied to that gentleman for relief. The applicant, who presented the appearance of being a hearty, well-conditioned woman of middle age, stated that she had recently arrived from a neighbouring colony, where she had been the victim of a speculating showman, who had at length left her to her own resources. Evans, or by whatever soubriquet she is known, added that, being heartily sick of the show life she has recently led, she had managed to obtain a passage back to Melbourne. She states that she is suffering from a physical infirmity which incapacitates her from severe labour, and her desire was that she might be admitted to the Benevolent Asylum. Mr. Panton gave the woman a letter of introduction to a member of the committee of management of the Benevolent Asylum.

ONE of the most extraordinary occurrences that have ever taken place in connection with any of the mining companies in this district (writes the Daylesford Advocate) transpired at the cleaning up of the Rising Star Company, Daylesford, on Saturday last. The battery was stopped as usual, and the process of cleaning the copper plates and boxes was entered upon. It should be stated that the tributers break their stone from different stopes; the stone is taken to the tip in the chamber and tipped indiscriminately into one heap. It is then hauled to the surface, and again tipped into one common pass, from which place it is trucked to the battery pass, by which time it has been turned over so often that there is no room for the conclusion that one portion of the heap is of a better quality than the other. But any further distinction is obviated by the fact that the stamper-boxes are fed gradually at the rate of a couple of shovelfuls at a time from almost the one spot. It is therefore impossible to imagine that there could be any difference in the quality of the quartz put in the respective boxes. The tributers crush with eight heads of stampers, which work in two boxes, and these are not supposed to be touched except in the presence of the manager or some of the persons directly interested. The boxes were cleaned up as usual on Saturday by the proper persons, and to the surprise of those thus engaged one box contained 120 oz. of amalgam—gold and quicksilver in about equal proportions—while only about 10 oz. were to be found in the other. And the difference was rendered all the more extraordinary when it was found that the copper plates and ripples in front yielded an equal quantity of amalgam, which is always taken as a true indication of what may be expected from the inside. It will thus be seen that the only conclusion to be arrived at was that over 100 oz. of amalgam was missing. Inquiries and a close examination did not serve to solve the mystery. It, however, became manifest to all that a robbery had taken place.

SOME of the perils of the bush are thus described by the Port Augusta Despatch, 28th January:—"A Mr. Spender, accompanied by his wife and son and another man, was proceeding to one of the outstations, but ran short of water. The horse either died or was unable to proceed, and the travellers started on foot. Mr. Spender was discovered by a station hand in a fearfully exhausted state, while Mrs. Spender was in a no less pitiable condition. The boy had proceeded ahead of the others of the company, and when found, two miles from the station, was almost worn out. He had only succeeded so far on his journey by cutting his arm, and sucking the blood, and thus allaying his thirst."

MR. H. LINGARD, the actor, was lately examined in New Zealand as to his monetary transactions. The New Zealand Herald reports the proceedings which took place at the Supreme Court, Auckland, on the 20th January:—"The charges against the insolvent were—1. That he was a person of considerable means, having large property, both real and personal. 2. That the proofs of debts against the estate were not bona fide claims. 3. That he had not fully accounted for his assets. 4. That there was a considerable amount of assets uncollected, which an examination of the bankrupt on oath would enable the trustee to discover. The insolvent swore positively that he had no jewellery except two studs, which he had purchased in Auckland. He denied that he had sent large sums of money away. He had sent money to his mother, who was an invalid lady. (The witness at this stage appeared to be greatly affected, and it was some time before he became sufficiently composed to proceed.) He had a gold watch which did not belong to him, but belonged to a maiden aunt. It was not worth 100 guineas. He had a set of sleeve-links. He observed that somebody wanted to strip him. He never wore rings or other jewellery. Witness stated that he had a wardrobe that cost him between £200 and £300, but it was not worth £20 to any one else. One of the coats in which he played the Butterman he valued at £40, but it was not worth as many shillings to any one else. It belonged to an uncle of his, who wore it in Wellington's time. His wardrobe consisted of 12 character coats, 11 hats, nine wigs, 14 pairs of trousers, 12 character dresses, three pairs of boots and shoes. Mr. Craig had purchased them for £15. They were said to be worth £40. They are not worth 20s. to anybody but an actor. There was a house in New York, bought by Mrs. Lingard with her own money, but it was mortgaged up to its full value. It might be worth between £3000 and £4000."

DURING a thunderstorm which occurred at Echuca (the Riverina Herald reports) the lightning was very vivid. The cross on the north gable of St. Mary's Catholic Church was struck. It fell to the ground in four pieces. The cross was composed of cement, and it appeared as if it were cut off by a cannon-ball. Not a brick or slate of the church was injured. After striking the cross, the electricity, in the shape of a ball of fire, struck off at a tangent, and appeared to bury itself in the yard at the rear of the church. School was being held in the church at the time of the occurrence, and flashes of red light were seen to dart through the building, some in close proximity to where the number of children were sitting, and these were followed by a terrible clap of thunder. A scene of wild consternation followed, some of the girls fainting and the boys rushing out into the yard. It was soon found, however, that no one was hurt.

RESPECTING the new table of railway rates for goods issued by the New South Wales Government, the Wagga correspondent of the Argus telegraphs to that journal:—"Great surprise is felt here at the new goods classification issued by the Railway Department. Under the rate-sheet just cancelled the following were the charges:—First-class rates, £3 7s. per ton; second-class, £4 4s. 6d.; third-class, which includes all case goods, drapery, grocery, £5 17s. Now the charge is, third-class goods £8 10s., and all others in proportion. Special rates were issued yesterday intended to apply to Albury and Wagga, making third-class goods £8 7s. 9d. per ton. This is excessive. One of the principal local firms, having several tons of goods from Melbourne at Albury, telegraphed to-day to forward by teams, thereby saving 15s. per ton. Several local firms are making arrangements with Wright, Heaton, and Co. to forward goods by teams. Mr. Baily, manager of a firm, states he can make arrangements from Albury for carting at less than the railway charges. The fact is, Sydney can never compete with Melbourne, and if not careful will lose the Wagga portion of the trade altogether. On sugar alone from Sydney the old rate was £3 6s. 8d. per ton on a truck load of six tons; now it is £5 5s. per ton on any quantity."

THE Sandhurst correspondent of the Age relates that on Friday morning, as mounted-constable Sainsbury, of Kangaroo Flat, was riding through his district, he came on a hut, from which a terrible stench was issuing. Looking in, he saw the dead body of a man hanging from the rafters. The stench was, however, too strong for him to enter, so he rode into Sandhurst, and brought out the coroner. The body, or rather skeleton, was then cut down. It must have been dead over a month. The sight was a horrible one, the bones being only held together by blackened pieces of skin. The man had a wooden leg. At the inquest held afterwards the evidence showed that deceased's name was Nicholas Samuelson, a Swede, 60 years of age. He lived by himself in a hut at Kangaroo Flat, and had told constable Sainsbury some time ago that he was tired of life, consequent on sufferings from rheumatism and poverty. He had been a patient in the Bendigo Hospital, and at the time of his death was the recipient of aid from the Benevolent Asylum. A verdict was returned of suicide while of unsound mind.

THE Victorian Minister of Railways (the Melbourne Daily Telegraph states) on returning from Albury last Friday, gave instructions to have arrangements made as rapidly as possible for letting tenders for the construction of the line of railway between Wodonga and the Murray River, a distance of about three miles. An amount of £23,000 was included in the last General Construction Bill for the completion of the line, and Mr. Patterson intends to have the work commenced as soon as the details can be completed to allow of tenders being called for. The question of constructing the railway bridge across the Murray will have to be settled between the Governments of New South Wales and Victoria before the junction between the two lines can be completed.

IN June last year an account appeared in the London Times of the exertions of a newspaper published in Philadelphia, called the Record, to break up an association of persons in that city who were engaged in selling "bogus" medical diplomas. Dr. John Buchanan, the chief dealer in these diplomas, and some of his associates were arrested and held to bail for this offence. When the police seized his papers they found that some 8000 spurious diplomas had been sold, while a large quantity remained on hand. Their prices varied from 65 dollars to 110 dollars each. They purported to be issued by the American University of Philadelphia, the Eclectic Medical College of Pennsylvania, and the Livingstone University, all of which colleges were legally incorporated by the State Legislature of Pennsylvania, which, it is said, has taken steps to annul the charters in consequence of the exposure. One of these diplomas was presented on Friday for registration by the Medical Board of Victoria, it is needless to say ineffectually.

Mr. GRAHAM BERRY at EAGLEHAWK.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

Mr. Berry addressed a meeting of the Eaglehawk Reform Association to-night, and said that the party might not achieve reform by the same means as originally proposed, but if they obtained any measure of reform it was a great end gained. In regard to the cry for moderation, he claimed that the Liberal party had always been moderate, and that there never had been a political party more moderate in their demands, while the opposite course characterized their opponents. He said that the bill which was proposed by himself and his colleagues gave the real control of the country to the people, but the other party desired that the Government should be administered in the interests of the wealthy, that they might receive certain advantages for the accumulation of wealth. The Reform Bill to be introduced in a few days would carry out all that the Liberals contended for, but the machinery might be somewhat different to that first proposed. From all he had seen in the neighbouring colonies, he was convinced that it was to Victoria, more than to any other country, they must look for the establishment of real Liberal principles and a true democracy. He further said that, as Australia must one day become a whole, the leaven of Victoria must leaven the whole lump of Australia; and they might say what they liked in the other colonies about their immense territories and large resources, but there was a living vital principle in democracy which it would be powerless to attempt to keep away. Mr. Pearson referred to education, and said that the measure must not be undermined.

THE ASHANTEE TROUBLE.

LONDON, FEB. 5.

Further advices, received from the West Coast of Africa, state that the threatened hostilities with the Ashantees are owing to a demand made for the surrender of a native chief who had taken refuge within British territory. The Governor of Sierra Leone refused to comply with this demand, and, as already announced, troops have been sent to the Ashantee coast in consequence of the hostile attitude assumed by the natives.

The secretary placed on the table two certificates and two bronze medals, which had been forwarded by the Sydney Commissioners for presentation to the successful exhibitors. It was decided to present the Secretary, Mr. Alfred Vindin, with a gift of twenty guineas for the valuable services he rendered to the committee.

DENMAN.

MONDAY.

A terrible boiler explosion occurred at Mr. Thomas Hungerford's flour mill at Baerami, near Denman, on the 3rd instant. It appears a fresh hand was engaged to drive the engine, and the second day the driver let nearly all the water out of the boiler, and as no one was in the mill at the time, he waited till Messrs. Thomas and Robert Hungerford came in, and they told him to draw the fire, which he commenced to do. Both the Messrs. Hungerford went round to the back of the engine, when an explosion took place. The boiler burst out both ends. The driver was blown ten yards, against a stack of wood; all his clothing, and one boot were blown off him; all his ribs and chest bones smashed. He was picked up and carried into the mill, where he lingered for two hours. Hot cinders adhered to his flesh, and he suffered excruciating pains. Mr. Thomas Hungerford, late M.L.A., was scalded badly on the body, arms, and face. Mr. Robert Hungerford was scalded on the head, and a workman was scalded on the face and hands. A magisterial inquiry was held on the 4th instant. No blame could be attached to anyone but the driver. The deceased was named Charles Hamilton, and was a stranger in the colony. No papers were found on him as to his past history. At latest news Mr. Thomas Hungerford was rather uneasy.

WEST KEMPSEY.

PUBLIC COMPANIES.

MERCANTILE MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the shareholders was held yesterday: Mr. John Pope presiding. The following report was adopted:—

The directors submit to the shareholders their report for the year ended 31st December, 1880.

The premiums for the year, less re-insurances, amounted to	£12,293 12 1
Add interest on investments... ...	777 9 1
Amount transferred from reserve fund	3,500 0 0
And balance from last account ...	999 2 9
Balance (profit and loss)	433 11 8
		£18,003 15 7
Less expenditure, per balance-sheet.	£5,280 12 5
Cost of reinsuring outstanding risk in other colonies (branches now closed)...	1,337 11 8
Losses for fires...	10,985 11 6
Shareholders' interest	400 0 0
		£18,003 15 7

The directors regret that, owing to the heavy losses which occurred (principally in Queensland) during the first six months of this year, the amount at credit of reserve fund has to be transferred. The business of the company now being confined to this colony and South Australia, and being of a select class, your directors think that satisfactory returns may in future be looked for.

The branches at Melbourne and Brisbane have both been withdrawn, the business in those colonies having been so unprofitable, and all risks outstanding have been reinsured.

It devolves upon the meeting to elect two directors in the room of G. Allen-Mansfield, Esq., and Charles Carleton Skarratt, Esq., who retire by rotation, but are eligible for re-election, and are the only shareholders who have given notice of candidature; also two auditors in lieu of Messrs. W. P. Manning and J. C. Taylor, who are also eligible for re-election.

Count Mouy, the new French Minister to Athens, presented his credential to King George, and after stating the traditional friendship of France for Greece, counselled a policy of prudence, and expressed a belief that the hopes of the Hellenes would be satisfied at an early date. The King, in reply, said the Powers had arranged the frontier, and the prompt execution of their decisions would be the surest means of averting the danger of fresh complications.

THE WEATHER.

The weather during yesterday was squally, and light rain continued throughout the day, with little intermission. Towards evening the wind began to blow with considerable force from the south, and rain fell steadily during the night. Telegrams from various parts of the country convey the welcome intelligence that a thorough break in the weather has occurred, and in several districts, notably the north-western, the downpour has been sufficiently heavy to create some apprehension of floods. At Denman, the lower parts of the town were inundated yesterday, and in several instances the residents had to remove to higher ground for safety. Up to yesterday afternoon 2½ inches of rain had fallen at Wollongong, and a heavy sea was running along the coast.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

COONABARABRAN, MONDAY.

The large fall of 3·31 inches of rain has been registered here since Friday evening, and the fall has been much heavier in other parts of the district. It is now fine.

OBERON, MONDAY.

Heavy rain fell here during the latter part of last week. The weather is now dull, but mild.

NEWCASTLE, MONDAY.

Rain has fallen here with very slight cessation since Friday last, but the weather now appears to have broken.

COOTAMUNDRA, MONDAY.

Fine, warm weather has set in, and the country begins to look green.

FORBES, MONDAY.

The weather is still threatening rain.

WINDSOR, MONDAY.

Splendid rains have fallen during the last few days and nights. The river has risen slightly. The crops are greatly benefitted.

DENMAN, MONDAY.

The heaviest rains on record have fallen since Friday last. The Sandy Creek overflowed its banks, and all the lower portions of the township of Denman are submerged. Three or four families had to leave their houses and seek refuge on the high ground. Preparations were made for a big flood on Sunday, the River Hunter then being three-quarter bank high; but it has gradually lowered since Sunday night. A bridge by the main street was carried away, paddock fences washed flat, and the greater portion of these have gone with the current, which was very strong. There is every appearance of more rain.

WEST MAITLAND, MONDAY.

It has been raining steadily since Saturday. The river has risen about 17 feet, but is now falling. The stonework of the river bank is standing well.

SCONE, MONDAY.

After several days excessive heat, the weather broke with a storm on Thursday evening, after which occasional showers fell up to Saturday, when a regular downpour set in. All the dams and creeks are full. 6.57 inches has been the total rainfall. To-day was warm, with the appearance of more rain.

WEST KEMPSEY, MONDAY.

Heavy and continuous rain fell during Saturday and Sunday. The river has risen about 5 feet. The weather is still showery.

TAMWORTH, MONDAY.

Owing to the late heavy rains, there was no fat stock forward for sale. The weather cleared yesterday, and the river fell as rapidly as it rose.

LITHGOW, MONDAY.

The rain we have been lately experiencing stopped last evening about sunset; but commenced again to-day about 10 o'clock, and shows every sign of continuance.

MUDGEE, MONDAY.

We had splendid rains on Saturday night and yesterday. The weather to-day was fine.

WILCANNIA, MONDAY.

The weather is fine, but a speedy rise in the river is expected.

WOLLONGONG, MONDAY.

Rain fell steadily during Saturday and Sunday, the fall since Friday being two and half inches. A strong southerly wind is blowing, with a heavy sea.

TUMUT, MONDAY.

After several days of intense heat, the thermometer ranging as high as 105° in the shade, refreshing rain has fallen, and more rain is threatening.

GOULBURN, MONDAY.

Over four inches of rain has fallen since Wednesday. It is still raining.

TEMORA, MONDAY.

The late rains have filled some of the miners' tanks, and enables them to prospect. Heavy rains fell in the neighbourhood of Woodstown and filled many dams. Narraburra Creek has risen one inch at the dam, where the water supply is obtained.

YASS, MONDAY.

The weather is still showery.

CRICKET.

BOROUGH OF GLEBE v. BOROUGH OF DARLINGTON.—The fourteenth annual cricket match between the boroughs of Darlington and the Glebe took place on Anniversary Day, on the University Oval. Great interest was taken in the game, for on this contest depended the ownership of the present cup. This cup was conjointly subscribed for by the inhabitants of each of the above boroughs, and the agreement specified that the cup should finally revert to that borough which won the first two out of three matches. As at the time of playing the above match each borough had an equal share in the cup—having won a match each—great interest was taken in the game. After a very close and exciting game the Darlingtons were declared to be the winners on the first innings, having obtained four more runs than their opponents. It is very much to be deprecated, however, that a dispute arose at the latter end of this match, with reference to the time at which the stumps were to be drawn. The fielding on both sides was very fair, but in some instances loose fielding on the part of one of the team was the cause of a couple of players making a very creditable score. Sweetnam and Gribble did nearly all the trundling for the Darlington team; while Sullivan and Burcher bowled the most successfully for the Glebe. Appended are the scores:—

AMUSEMENTS.

THE AUSTRIAN BAND.

Despite the unpropitious weather, the concert given by the Austrian Band, at the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, last night, was better attended than any previous one had been, and the large audience which assembled showed most unmistakably its appreciation of every item on the programme. Few encores were allowed, but had the wish of those present been acceded to, nearly every selection would have been repeated. The conductor, however, was prudent enough not to allow repetitions, save in a couple of instances where applause was prolonged to an unusual degree. The programme commenced with Fahrbach's "Glück auf March," after which came the well-known overture to Rossini's "William Tell," in which the violoncello opening was played with excellent taste. The horn music was well given, and the clarionet was heard to good effect, while the florid passages for the first violins were perfect, and the whole band was kept together by Herr Braun for a splendid finale. The commencement of Reinecke's "Entre 'Act King Manfred'" was marred by the unexpected effect of an engine whistle outside, just as the stringed instruments were getting well to work, and a subsequent inharmonious hissing of steam spoilt the rest of this selection. This composition is written for strings alone, and is beautifully harmonised, but at best it is of rather too high class to suit a mixed audience, and with the discordant accompaniment we have mentioned, was completely spoiled. Herr Kotracek's clarionet concerto was encored, and the compliment was deserved, for the soloist performed a number of the most beautiful variations on a very melodious theme, and in doing so evolved a pure full tone at the highest range of the instrument and observed, amid his most rapid fingering, absolutely correct time. The first and second violins and the 'cello, meanwhile, sustained a good accompaniment, including several brilliant arpeggio passages. "On the Moldava," a polka, by Strauss, is an excellent composition of its class, one that would be welcomed in any ballroom; but last night the precise time usually kept by the Austrian Band was marred by the tardiness of the horn player. The first part of the programme closed with a "Reveille Comique," by Fahrbach—a comical composition which opens with a telling theme by the full band. The conductor for the first time turns his back on his men, and then one by one they put down their instruments and slip away, as if they really did not see that they were needed to sustain the air, given with such fullness of sound by the drums, the bassoons, and a few of the reeds. The violinists accede first, and the other players follow in rapid succession, the amusement of the audience increasing as they notice how few instruments—at the finish only about three—are required to produce apparently as much sound as at first came from the full band. Bache's "Meditation" was the gem of the evening; and while it was listened to with absorbed attention, such hearty applause followed it that the latter portion had to be played again. Like Schubert's "Serenade," Gounod's "Ave Maria," and a few other compositions, this is a work of which one cannot get tired, and last night its dreamy melody was interpreted with an amount of artistic sympathy which invested it with all the fresh interest one brings to the reception of a new, great effort by some well-known master. The harp obligato was noticeable for its accuracy of tone, and the trio for harp, first violin and 'cello, was a delicious bit of harmony. The overture to Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" dragged a little, from the slow time in which it was taken. "Nightly Rounds," by Jungmann, suggests such airs as "Jolly Dogs," and "We won't go home till morning"; but in reality is a picturesque morceau, recalling the tramp of the night watch, and the varying episodes which darkness brings, and ending with the stroke of midnight, crashed out by the cymbals. A Strauss waltz, "Hydropaten," and a potpourri by Zimmerman closed a good programme. It is interesting to notice that at nearly everyone of these concerts may be seen many members of the city and suburban bands, eagerly listening to the music so artistically played by the Austrian Band, and learning the method by which such eminent skill has been achieved by the players. The result will be, we hope, the formation of a city band which ought to be able some day to compete with even such visitors as we have at present. The Austrians will give another concert to-morrow night.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"Ceste" was repeated at the Theatre Royal last night to a fair house. Miss Blanche Stammers again secured the unqualified approval of the audience for her excellent representation of the noble-hearted Esther Eccles. The bright and loving nature of Polly Eccles was well brought out by Miss Annie Taylor, who was ably seconded by Mr. J. H. South, as Sam Gerridge, the rough yet kindly-disposed painter. The other characters in the piece were well sustained.

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

This elegant and comfortable place of amusement was well patronised last night, when "The Deal Boatman" and "The Old Story" were repeated with much success.

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

The American drama "The Danites" drew a large audience last night at the Queen's, and it certainly seems to have hit the public taste. The piece is well put upon the stage, and the many striking incidents with which it abounds are brought out by the various members of the company. The scenic effects were excellent, and drew forth unbounded applause. "The Danites" will be repeated until further notice.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

"Jack Sheppard" was again produced at this theatre last night, and afforded much amusement to those who patronise this class of entertainment.

THOMPSON'S DIORAMA.

Last night Mr. W. H. Thompson reopened at the School of Arts with his mirror of the Zulu War, which was exhibited in Sydney some four months ago. He was welcomed back to the city by a numerous audience, all of whom seemed to enjoy the entertainment provided. The various scenes, which include representations of the famous battles of the late South African Campaign, are all well painted, the running commentary on the views being well given by the lecturer. The march of Lord Chelmsford to the relief of Ekowe formed the second part of the programme, and it was not only a fine series of pictures but an interesting and ingenious piece of mechanism. The concluding part of the entertainment was, however, the most interesting, the mechanism being of a more than ordinarily complicated character. It represented the procession at the funeral of the late Prince Imperial from Woolwich to St. Mary's Chapel, at his English home, Chiselhurst, and was shown with great effect, the whole performance passing off without a hitch. As usual, a number of valuable presents were distributed to those fortunate enough to hold the lucky numbers.

MISS CHRISTIAN'S CONCERT, TO-NIGHT.

Concerts are certainly of not unusual occurrence in Sydney, but rarely indeed do we have the opportunity of enjoying such a one as that which Miss Christian will give this evening, at the Masonic Hall. Facility of railway communication with Victoria has enabled her to secure the services of a number of English vocalists of note, two of them being entirely new to Sydney; and so a programme of almost unexampled excellence has been arranged. Miss Christian, Miss Annis Montague, Mr. Charles Turner, and Mr. E. Farley will be the principals: and the great contralto will sing "London Bridge" (Molloy), Sullivan's "Will he come?" and Gounod's "Ave Maria." In this last-named composition she will be accompanied by the violoncello and pianoforte. Miss Annis Montague, a brilliant soprano, who has proved her excellence on both the operatic and concert stage, will sing the "Polonaise" from "Mignon" (Ambroise Thomas), and an aria from "Sonnambula," and will subsequently join Mr. Turner in a grand duo from "Lucia." Mr. Charles Turner, whose voice has created a pleasant sensation in Melbourne, is down for "The Message," (Blumenthal), and Sullivan's tender little ballad "The Snow Lies White;" while Mr. Farley's selections are "The Yeoman's Wedding Song" (Poniatowski), and "Will o' the Wisp." All four vocalists will combine for the grand quartette from "Rigoletto," and this of itself should make the concert a memorable one, for very seldom does one hear superb music interpreted by four English singers of such excellence. Mr. J. E. Herrmann, a violoncellist of merit, will play a couple of solos, and Miss Clara Whomes will perform Mendelssohn's "Rondo Brilliante." Mr. C. B. Foster and Mr. C. Huenerbein will conduct, and the concert is under the patronage of a number of people who appreciate and encourage good music. We understand that a large number of tickets have been disposed of, and that the whole of the arrangements are under the direction of Mr. R. S. Smythe.

LAYCOCK AND HANLAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent "X," in denouncing the action of "Charon" in publishing extracts from Laycock's manly letters, seems to me to have done a very unnecessary thing; and, as one of that far go section of the public who have, from time to time, read these extracts with keen interest, I protest against the position taken up by the censor. Personally I do not greatly care for racing per se, and in that I differ from "Charon;" but the whole circumstances connected with Laycock's trip to England are of a nature so exceedingly interesting that I feel "Charon" has given us a real pleasure in making us acquainted with the inner pulsations of that sterling honest heart which beats in the breast of Elias Laycock. Before Laycock left for England he was not, let us remember, a popular rower; but the letters in which, with true nobility, he ranks Trickett's losses first, and his own victories last, reveal indisputably the entire smallness of their writer. "X." somewhat ostentatiously as it appears to me, parades his willingness to subscribe to a Laycock testimonial, but he evidently forgets that the extracts published by "Charon" in your columns have had no small effect in regaining for Laycock the confidence and, I can add as an outsider, the admiration of the general public.

THE KENNY HILL WATER SUPPLY SCHEME.

A meeting of the general committee appointed to investigate the merits of the Kenny Hill scheme was held at the Town Hall, yesterday afternoon; the Mayor (Alderman J. Harris) presided, and there was a large attendance of members. A lengthy and exhaustive report on the labours of the executive committee was read by Dr. Belgrave. Mr. C. Stuart, in moving its adoption, spoke in strong terms of the action of the Government in calling upon Mr. Moriarty to report upon the schemes, as it was not to be expected that he could be impartial. Alderman Bogle seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. Montague Levey, and carried unanimously. Alderman John Young moved a resolution to the effect that the Government should be asked to appoint a hydraulic engineer, or two engineers, to draw up a report, and that the City Council should be asked to appoint one engineer, the committee appointing another for the same object. This was seconded by Mr. Withers, M.L.A., supported by Mr. Poole, M.L.A., and unanimously agreed to. Dr. Belgrave moved,—"That, in the event of the Colonial Secretary denying the request made to him, the committee should itself undertake the duty of appointing two engineers." Mr. A. Forsyth seconded the motion, which was supported by Mr. W. Byrne, and passed.

A vote of thanks having been accorded to the Mayor for his kindness in presiding, the meeting terminated.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The following is the report of the Executive Committee, which was adopted unanimously:—

"Gentlemen,—In endeavouring to carry out your intentions, the executive committee have held 26 meetings, visited the sites of the reservoirs at Kenny Hill, employed Mr. G. Francis, C.E., to report on certain details in connection with the 6th contract section of the works beyond the site of the main dam, printed and published Mr. Gippe' pamphlet on the comparison of the Kenny Hill and Prospect schemes, invited Mr. Gippe to answer the objections to his scheme contained in Mr. Moriarty's report, have made application at various times for information at the Department of Public Works; and have been favoured with a perfectly impartial and very valuable critique by an engineer now on a visit to Sydney, whose antecedents entitle him to be considered a high practical authority, and whose previous unacquaintance with the professional gentlemen implicated, renders his judgment free and unfettered.

"This opportune labour we append, as it refers to details we may be incompetent to work out ourselves. We have, however, published it in advance, to afford you an opportunity to consider the subjects it treats of, and to enable you to arrive at a wise decision as to our future course of action.

"Your committee have been much encouraged by the intense interest displayed by the great warehousemen, manufacturers, merchants, and other classes in the objects of their labours. Indeed, except from certain members of Parliament who, having either felt themselves unable to sufficiently master the details of the question, or being deterred by considerations of party policy from attempting the effort, have acted as if they considered the matter already irrevocably committed to the Government, your committee have received general co-operation.

"As the subject is one that affects the security and progressive development of the city, and the lives, convenience, and prosperity of the citizens more than any other at present under public consideration, your committee is of opinion that no metropolitan member of the Legislative Assembly is justified in retaining his seat at this juncture if he feels himself restrained by circumstances of party obligation or any other cause from the independent exercise of his judgment and freewill in connection with the subject, and voting in conformity with his conscience.

"Though the executive committee have recognised that your commission to them chiefly related to securing for all suggestions a judicial and complete examination by competent professional persons, circumstances have occurred, and particularly the delay on the part of the Engineer for Harbours and Rivers, in presenting his report on the Kenny Hill scheme to the Minister, to induce the committee to address themselves, with more ardour than your instructions indicated, to several of the scientific, practical, and financial aspects of the question, and to elicit information from many quarters.

"Your committee gladly acknowledge that Mr. Moriarty's report, though tardy in its appearance, leaves but few details of the subject untouched. It is evident, however, that, though not wanting in completeness, it lacks every element of a judicial character. Nor does your committee think his Excellency's Government was justified in assuming that it could take any other form. As a labour in advocacy of the Prospect, and disparagement of the Kenny Hill scheme, it leaves little to be desired; but it is not the less valuable on that account, inasmuch as it has brought the field of dispute within the narrowest limits, and made the way clear for the appointment of a decisive engineering authority, whose work, now reduced to a minimum, by the antecedent labours of others, admits of being performed in a very short period of time.

"The Executive Committee, concurring in the feeling of the citizens which led to their appointment, viz., the desire to have a high-level service for the purpose of profiting in the city by the innumerable uses which can now be made in the house, the factory, the store, harbour navigation, tramtraffic, &c., of hydraulic power, have addressed themselves to their task with much earnestness.

"They find that there exists no difference of opinion between Mr. Moriarty, Mr. Gippe, and all modern engineering authorities, touching the superiority of a high pressure over a low pressure service, and they have been surprised that Mr. Moriarty, notwithstanding his distinct recognition of the great importance of a high pressure service, and its pecuniary profitable character, should, nevertheless, retain the use of the Crown-street reservoir, not as a simple pumping station to a higher level distributing reservoir, but as the principal basin in connection with reticulation for the supply of the greater part of the city.

"As nearly every householder in Sydney has been made painfully aware of the fact that at the innumerable fires that have occurred in the city, the water from this service never has, yet, except in cases of small houses near the harbour, reached the roofs of buildings direct from the stand pipes, the committee think little argument on this branch of the question is called for, even if fire engines could compensate for this want.

"If the pressure from Crown-street were sufficient to supply the citizens with the advantages of hydraulic power the configuration of the city and suburbs renders possible, and the necessities of modern life make indispensable, they would long since have enjoyed them.

"In illustration of the narrow limit of service power afforded by Crown-street, your committee desire to call to your memory the fact that the directors of the Sydney Infirmary, finding that the water from this source would not reach even the first floor of their building, were recently put to a great expense on shifting the connection of their pipes to the high level or Paddington service.

"In his report, Mr. Moriarty essays to make it appear that the difference between the two schemes he is preparing lies in the supposition that the Kenny Hill scheme gives a high pressure service all over the city by gravitation; the Prospect the same, but by pumping; and that the question thence resolves itself into the one of comparative cost.

"Though your committee recognize that the controversy is susceptible of being narrowed to this point, they perceive Mr. Moriarty has not done so, inasmuch as he proposes to retain the Crown-street reservoir for the purposes of distribution, thus leaving the business and most important parts of the city in precisely the same state as they are now, practically at the mercy of the ever present enemy, fire, and destitute of useful hydraulic power; thus absolutely neutralizing all the great advantages of quantity, elasticity, vicinity of storage reservoirs to Sydney, &c., claimed as advantageous features in the plans of the Commission.

"The possibility of an intermittent use of this advantage in cases of fire, by shifting the connections of the mains from the low to the high level service, may be some advantage, but would very imperfectly meet the case, inasmuch as this increased head would only immediately tell on the lots when the lower mains are full. As this cannot always be, and carries with it a danger already amply referred to in Mr. Gippe's report, the suggestion is inadequate to meet the case. With a constant high-pressure service, fire engines may be dispensed with, and the water, and means to make it available at the most critical moment, be always at hand—an advantage that it is not necessary to be an engineer to fully appreciate; and which to a wealthy and growing city like Sydney means efficient protection to an immense amount of wealth and preservation from no inconsiderable degree of human suffering.

"If the Prospect scheme admitted of the abolition of the Crown-street reservoir as a distributing station, and its preservation only for the purpose of pumping the water to a sufficiently high level reservoir to furnish the city with the head required, the question would assume another aspect—that of comparative cost. But Mr. Moriarty seriously proposes to limit the supply by pumping to Waverley, Woollahra, Paddington, and North Shore, his motive for so doing being the cost of pumping, which he and the late Mr. Clark reckoned at an amount capitalized for 1,500,000 gallons (the precise quantity supposed to be pumped up) at £55,000, or £29,333 6s. 8d. per 1,000,000 gallons.

"To pump up 25,000,000 gallons, the maximum reliable quantity the supplying rivers can furnish per day, and which would allow for the growth of the city to twice its present population, would therefore cost as follows:—Twenty-five millions capitalized cost of pumping—£733,333 6s. 8d., plus the cost of additional piping to bring the increased amount from the Bankstown balance reservoir; and minus the allowances necessary to be made in consideration of the fact that the pro rata cost of pumping diminishes as the gross quantity increases. Here, we desire to call the attention of the general committee to the following observation of Mr. Moriarty, with reference to the great value of water power to an important seaport and manufacturing, and commercial city like Sydney:—'As regards the consumption of water for power such as hydraulic lifts, engines and manufactories, &c., I find, kindly I do not greatly care for racing per se, and in that I differ by returns kindly furnished me by the water department, that the annual consumption is about 710,000,000 gallons, for which a charge of 1s. per 1000 gallons is made. If water were to be used for these purposes in Sydney, and it were thought desirable to use the pressure which the Waverley head of 360 feet (320 according to Mr. Clark's report, page 21) would give, then the cost of raising 1000 gallons to Waverley would be under 2d., while the charge would be 1s., leaving a very handsome profit on the transaction.'

"If Mr. Moriarty were to carry out his intention of utilising the head to which he refers for the purposes he mentions, how is it possible it can be done, while he retains the use of the Crown-street station as a distributing reservoir in connection with the reticulations which at present supply the manufactories, &c., in question. Clearly his high level is unavailable for that purpose, unless he places in connection with it a distinct service. This Mr. Moriarty also makes evident in his remarks touching the occasional use of high pressure through the medium of special connection and valves, to effect the junction between the high and low level services.

"Hence it appears that Mr. Moriarty proposes to leave the city proper where the use of hydraulic power is almost alone required, practically in the condition which it is now, limited to Crown-street and Paddington.

"Even his proposition to change in the case of fire the supply from the low to the high-pressure service presents difficulties well-known to all practical engineers, and which Mr. Gippe has referred to in his report, which renders even this indispensable use of hydraulic power doubtful of attainment, to say the least.

"The Kenny Hill scheme, it is evident, will afford us all the advantages of a high-pressure service, inasmuch as neither Mr. Moriarty nor any other engineer has questioned the capability of the scheme to deliver water at a sufficient elevation for this purpose. We further desire to draw your particular attention to the height of the point of departure of the water intended for the supply of the Petersham reservoir, which is situated at a height of—according to Mr. Moriarty's report—165 feet above sea level, and is intended to supply Balmain, Camperdown, Newtown, Macdonaldtown, Petersham, Ashfield, Burwood, &c.

"As Mr. Moriarty proposes to draw his water for Petersham from the small storage reservoir at 52 miles 73 chains, near Duck Creek, referred to in page 13 of Mr. Clark's report, and Mr. Moriarty's late critique on page 4, as being within 10 miles of Sydney, and the elevation of this particular reservoir being 164.16 feet, it is clearly impossible that the Prospect scheme, as at present designed, can supply the western suburbs, the Petersham reservoir being situated at an elevation of 165 feet. The eminent practical engineer refers to this matter in his report, and asserts that it is impossible for this to take place. The Kenny Hill scheme leaves this matter entirely beyond doubt.

"With reference to the sites for the reservoir at Kenny Hill, Mr. Moriarty, in the first page of his report, disparages the scheme on the ground of the 'formidable difficulties' to be encountered in the construction of the dams. On page 10 are the details on which this judgment is founded; these formidable difficulties consisting in the necessity of the carrying the puddle trench to the depth of 40 or 45 feet, about 15 of these being unnecessarily through solid shale rock. As the precise cost of the dam has been estimated with much appearance of certainty, we do not think this objection, other circumstances being favourable, militates against the adoption of the scheme. The fact, moreover, of this site having been pointed out by the late Mr. Clark as probably suitable for a subsidiary reservoir for irrigation purposes, we consider confirmatory of Mr. Gippe' views, as we presume subsidiary reservoirs are also required to be retentive.

"Mr. Moriarty estimates that the flow of water in his open channels will occupy 10 hours; and that in consequence of the agitation it must undergo in its passage over the rapids and cascades it would meet in its course, it must undergo such aeration and oxydation as would materially improve its character, the premises being for the sake of argument taken as granted. This may be admitted, but it is evidently an unsatisfactory reply to the proposition of Mr. Gippe, viz., that organic life in the shape of bacteria, &c., may be developed in open channels in a few hours in a semi-tropical climate like that of New South Wales; and the importance of this fact, which the experiments of Professors

A VISIT TO THE NATIONAL PARK.

BY HADJI.

Perhaps it may be some consolation to the 1500 invites and pretendus of the National Park picnic to know the experiences of a small party during three days on the Port Hacking River, at and around the spot selected to be the scene of their festivities. I should not say consolation, but caution; for, though I now enjoy the satisfaction of having seen the National Park, yet, sir, I dare not present myself before you. My brow is furrowed, still it resembles somewhat the majestic ranges and valleys of the picturesque estuary I have just explored: my feet are three sizes too large for boots that four days ago were my adornment and my pride; my hands are mental and physical sorrow. And all this is by the diminutive but persistent mosquito and his more contemptible, but less musical, brother, the sandfly. Long an admirer of your City Parks, where art had fashioned nature's rude knolls into bosky dells and radiant slopes, I burned with desire to see the latest gift to your city. Fishermen, my companions on many an excursion in and off Botany Bay, had described to me, as they only can, the endless winding reaches of Port Hacking River; the rich flora, and grand fish-pools; the wallaby, and, best attraction of all, the Australian pheasant, or lyre bird, whose rich note would be heard from the deep cool glades of thickest leafage. A party of five left Botany Bay at 6 o'clock in the evening in an open boat, under the leadership of an old Botany fisherman, with another well-known character as guide—Black Bob; sailed round the Cape Solander, under the cliff that bears the plate to the memory of Cook and Banks.

Why could not the spot where Cook stepped ashore and unfolded the flag of England be retained as a public park? It has all the interest of Plymouth Rock, and near it is a monument—the private gift of a respected colonist—and a brass tablet inscribed by the old Philosophical Society, 1821, to "James Cook and Joseph Banks, the Columbus and and Maecenas of their time." And all this is private property.

A six-mile sail brought us over the bar of Port Hacking—a wide reach of salt water, "stretching its arms," as the German of our party expressed it, "like an octopus, into the borders of Australia." The shores advance and recede in rocky cliffs and green glades with great beauty and repose. Here and there a hut or a cottage—the former where nomadic fishermen camp, the latter where some settler had built a house and cleared a garden. The wind died away, and we had to pull for about another six miles, when we reached Hamilton's Hut, near "The Fountain." A little lower down we passed Echo Point, where the rocks gave back every word in double and triple reverberations with great beauty and clearness. Black Bob's Shakesperian quotations, the German's song, and even the Scotchman's hard English (members of our party) were repeated with fidelity. The fountain, alas, was dry; and only in the upper pool, at the top of the hill, could we find any water. At Hamilton's Hut, while resting to "boil the billy," we got the first warning of what Port Hacking mosquitoes are—than whom, I dare assert, are no more bloodthirsty ruffians at large. Each point we passed had a name, and each pool a reputation:—"Gran' mullet hole;" "I've seen three boat-loads hauled from below that rock;" "Big flathead there, any amount," and so on. Even as far as ten miles above the bar fishermen work the river with both net and line.

We arrived at the "Camp" after another two miles over a beautiful reach of river of varying width, where the range on either side now advances in bold rocky precipices, and now falls back, enclosing a plateau whose rich soil is indicated by the gigantic tree-trunks and the rich tree-ferns and cabbage palms. "The Camp" is the focus of the park. The Parisian Flaneur drives to the cascade of the Bois de Bologne; here will the Southern Lounger find his cascade. Reserved trees and selected exotic shall some day shelter him here, where the many-branching roads of the park will converge. Now there are only a skeleton pavilion, a few tents, and some workmen's huts—the former apparently newly erected (perhaps for the abandoned fete), the latter of a very temporary nature.

Four miles still further do we pull or push the boat, —for in places the water is shallow, and in the darkness we miss the channel. We fix our camp at the "Peach Trees." This is the site of an old sawpit; but how the peach trees and the passion-flower and the English raspberry come to be growing here not even Bob can tell. The majority incline to Bob's conjecture—"Carried home by flying foxes, and dropped here where the trees are higher, the foliage denser, the glens in deeper gloom, and the jungle thicker."

Here we camp, but not sleep. Myriads of winged fiends, attracted by the light of our fire, harass us the remaining hours of the night; the air above is thick with flying-foxes, screaming on their homeward journey from the gardens around Sydney to their roosting-ground in a dark glen close to us; and even in the boat is no relief for "the midge's dance aboon the burn." The Scotchman produced Kendall's latest volume, and the "Wonderful Boy" of our party read "Jim, the Splitter," "Bill, the Bullock-driver," and then "When underneath the brown dead grass," which latter Goldie (of our party) condemned as incomplete, because "no mention of the torture of mosquitoes."

In the early morning we followed a track by the side of the stream, now much shrunken, and so filled with logs and snags as not to be navigable for our boat. Far up the glen we reach the stalactite caves, of which many Sydney people have heard. It is a long and rough, but beautiful walk. The river is lined by gigantic trees, draped to their summits, 100 feet high, with creepers in every shade of greenery—not choking their own bright foliage, but adorning their gnarled boughs—and festooned in all the graceful forms that Nature can assume in her wildest freedom. Tree-ferns, cabbage palms, and mahogany trees are "docked in tears" of the morning dew. No Indian or Brazilian jungle can equal this Australian glen in varied and beautiful foliage, but not a flower, not a blossom, save that of the old-fashioned "grandmother's camomile."

The stalactite caves are small—not worthy of rapture. The marble icicles have lost the sheen that so brilliantly lights up the gloom of the galleries of the Fish River or of the rock of Gibraltar—and are dull and muddy in colour—but the few columns are massive and fantastic, the gradual work of centuries.

Of game, we saw during the three days of our trip only one wallaby, two lyre-birds (and these doubtful, for the German made a pun in questioning Bob's natural history in his identification of the bird), a few wonga pigeons, about a million flying foxes, and several big lizards. But of fish we had no lack. Cast our lines where we chose, we got bream and flathead, and in taking a final cast outside the bar, on our homeward way, we half filled the boat with kingfish and schnapper.

The National Park cannot be well seen by road. The arms of the river (or estuary of Port Hacking) are its natural highways. I would advise the tourist to the future Versailles of Sydney to take a boat, explore arm after arm, climb a ridge here and there, plunge deep into and explore these

> "Valleys of the flashing wing,
> The dim green margins and the glimmering spring."

I lament with Carlyle that no schoolmaster "taught me the grasses that grow by the wayside and the little winged and wingless neighbours that are continually meeting me with a salutation that I cannot answer as things are." The varied forms of trees and plants would have a greater beauty, and perchance the sting of a mosquito be less painful and his song less irksome. In no place do the ridges attain a great height; perhaps 600 feet is the highest, and from any can be seen a succession of hills and valleys, the former more openly timbered, the latter clothed with dense and beautiful foliage.

Still, I must confess the great feature of the National Park at present is its inaccessibility.

Our SYSTEM of ASSISTED IMMIGRATION.

II.—THE TESTIMONY OF TRADE SOCIETIES.

Mr. William Roylance, a stonemason, who has officiated as secretary to the Trade and Labour Council for some considerable time, informed the Immigration Committee that he had known many of the assisted immigrants remain in and about Sydney, and swell the ranks of the unemployed. He had also known them to leave town and go into the country without obtaining employment. There was any number of skilled tradesman in and about Sydney who were unable to obtain employment. In all classes of building and iron trades the supply far exceeded the demand. He believed there had passed a general wave of depression over the industrial world, and New South Wales, in common with other countries, had suffered from this; but he believed the suffering here had been aggravated by the immigration policy of the Government. The majority of immigrants who came here were tradesmen and labourers, but not farm labourers. The introduction of immigrants injuriously affected the trade of the whole colony—farm, building, and iron. He knew plenty of farm labourers who could not get employment in the country, and were glad to apply for pick and shovel work in the city. Men were wandering about the country with their swags, unable to obtain employment. The majority of the Trade and Labour Council did not object to immigration if it were necessary; but they desired that only those should be brought out who were required by the colony. At the same time they considered that there was at present a superabundance of all hands. Mr. Roylance decidedly thought that immigration should for a time be suspended. If we were to have immigration at all, proper men, who knew the wants of the colony, should be appointed as agents. He had a letter from Mr. Joseph Arch, of the Agricultural Labourers' Union in England, in which it was stated that lecturers went about who were not farming men, and who knew very little about farming. When those men went into the agricultural districts the people paid very little attention to them, because they could not give the information required with reference to farming in New South Wales. He believed New South Wales was large enough to absorb any number of immigrants of a proper class, if proper arrangements were made for distributing them, and giving the men a start when they got here. If a proper system were adopted for placing farm labourers upon the land and maintaining them for the first twelve months, hundreds would be induced to come out. That would give them an opportunity of settling upon the land, instead of entering into the general labour market. The system the Government adopted in the matter of immigration, of running a ship into Sydney harbour, landing immigrants on the Circular Quay, and leaving them to take their chance either in the country or in town was a most objectionable system. The only provision made for them was that they were given a railway pass to some strange place in the country where they had never been before, and where they had no friend to advise them. A Labour Bureau should be formed, and some attention should be paid to these people after they were landed. The fact that there had been a great increase in the number of persons sending for their friends was no proof that labour was required, as those persons sent for their friends or relatives from motives of affection. It was true that near Sydney there was an immense amount of suburban property owned by mechanics, wholly or in part, through building societies, and that that class of property was rapidly extending. With reference to the manner in which railway contracts were carried out in the colony the Trade and Labour Council frequently received complaints. What had been complained of most bitterly was the system of advertising for hands in the city papers where they were not required; and the men have found after travelling into the country that they have not been required. Some parties seemed to have a system of keeping a standing advertisement in the city papers; in fact, he could name particular railway contracts in connection with which there had been this standing advertisement, both north and south —Junee and Narrandera, and the section between Tamworth and Gunnedah. Persons had told him that they had seen those advertisements in the city papers; when they had gone to those places there had been no such advertisements in the local papers; and upon application at the works they had been told that they were not wanted.

Mr. Henry J. Windon, secretary of the Sydney branch of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, stated that there was great depression in the iron trades in Sydney, and the men employed in those trades found great fault with the introduction of men of the same trade by assisted immigration. It caused a great expense to the society from the fact that it had to support the immigrants belonging to those trades until they obtained employment. By almost every vessel there was an addition to the ranks of those dependent upon the society. Some of those belonging to the society who had come out as assisted immigrants, had, after tramping over the country in search of employment, and seeking it in vain, returned to England. He knew two or three who had gone by each trip of the Orient line of steamers at 1s. a month, and he knew one who went home by the Garonne as a coal trimmer. He felt confident that those men had not been offered fair wages,—in fact, they would have had to take them or forfeit the benefits of the society if they refused. When asked by a member of the committee "If the Immigration Agent has stated that the whole of the shipments of immigrants who have arrived here lately have not remained above a day or forty-eight hours but have found employment, would that be incorrect?" Mr. Windon replied, "It would be undoubtedly; I have no hesitation in saying so." As a fact, the Immigration Agent made no such statement as that inferentially attributed to him. On the contrary, he stated that fully one-third of the immigrants were lost to him shortly after their landing from the ship, but the greater portion of those he did hear from appeared to do well. When asked "What has been your experience with regard to those people getting employment when they come into this colony; have you found that large numbers have not been able to get employment?" Mr. Windon replied, "Yes, I have always found it so."

"Then," said the same member of the committee, "if the Immigration Agent had said that is not the case, he has not stated the truth?" "Undoubtedly," was Mr. Windon's answer, "he has not stated the truth if he has said that they got work, for I am in a position to state that they cannot get it." Here, again, it was made to appear that Mr. Wise had made statements which he was careful not to make. Mr. Windon stated that he knew men in the iron trade who had come out as immigrants, under the designation of agricultural labourers. Among the immigrants with whom he came in contact he had heard no complaints as to the Agent-General having misled them in regard to the rate of wages, but he had heard complaints as to their having been misled in reference to the prospect of employment. They had been told that they would have no difficulty in obtaining employment. He did not approve of assisted immigration at all.

Mr. William Davies, the chairman of the Miners' Union of the county of Northumberland, stated that there had been a great many miners seeking employment in the Newcastle district, in consequence of the number of miners arriving in the colony at the expense of the Government. He did not know the number of arrivals, but the numbers set out in the report of the Immigration Agent was nothing like a correct statement of all the miners who really arrived as assisted immigrants.* He knew of many immigrants who came out as farm labourers, or under other designations, but who were in reality miners. He believed that a large number of those were sent for by their friends among the coal miners in Newcastle. He remembered Mr. Wise telling him once that 75 per cent. of the moneys paid as deposits for nominated immigrants were paid out of the Newcastle district. He thought it was cruel and very injudicious for the friends to bring the miners out when they could not get work. During the previous two years things had been fearfully depressed in the mining districts of England, and, therefore, miners there had been glad to leave. On board one ship only, the Northbrook, he had found as many as thirty miners. He had gone on board immigrant ships to inquire for coal-miners, and he discovered that it was some time before they would acknowledge themselves as coal-miners, though he was sure from the marks on their hands and faces that they were so. He had gone up to them and said, "Are you not a coal-miner?" and they have said, "No;" and then afterwards, when he got a little bit more acquainted with them, he was told that the reason why they did not like to acknowledge themselves as coal-miners was that they had come out as farm labourers; they had gone to the Emigration Agent at home, and were told they would not be taken as coal-miners; but it was said, "Can you do nothing else; can you not use a pick and shovel, or do farm work, and then you could go out as labourers?"

Mr. John Dixon, secretary to the Miners' Association of Northumberland, said that he had heard bitter complaints from people who had come out here by immigrant vessels, of having been deceived by false representations in the mother country. He had frequently seen or heard of recent arrivals in the colony wandering about the country districts unable to find employment. There were numerous cases of miners who came out under other designations. If the men gave reasonable proof that they belonged to other trades he would not blame the Emigration Agents in England, but he did blame the Agent for sending them out when, on their own confession, he knew they were miners. For instance, a man would go to the Agent, and say, "I want to go out to New South Wales." "Well, what are you?"—"A coal miner"—and the Agent would return the papers, and tell him to put on farm labourer. He had known people who who had come out in that way. The Government Agent told them to put anything on but coal-miners; he knew people who had told him that had been done with them.

* The number of coal-miners who came out was, according to Mr. Wise (see Monday's Herald), 337 in 1877, 114 in 1878, and 33 in 1879.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—MONDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

M'MAHON V. STOKES.

This was an action between two omnibus proprietors, plaintiff seeking to recover £10 as compensation for damages sustained to an omnibus and horses, by reason of the negligent and careless driving of defendant's servant. The evidence given by plaintiff and several witnesses was to the effect that on the 11th December, while an omnibus, driven by one of plaintiff's servants, was proceeding along Newtown Road on the way to Sydney, defendant's omnibus running from Enmore passed, and subsequently, after getting through the toll-gate, the driver of the latter vehicle wilfully pulled across the road to prevent plaintiff's bus from passing. Plaintiff's driver, in order to avoid a collision, steered to the side of the roadway, and on to an embankment; defendant's driver also swerved towards the embankment, and the hind wheel of one vehicle and the splinter-bar of the other becoming entangled, plaintiff's omnibus was capsized. Defendant's version of the affair was, that the driver of his omnibus was proceeding along Newtown Road at a steady pace, plaintiff's vehicle being a considerable distance behind. After passing the Newtown toll-bar, the driver of plaintiff's omnibus whipped up his horses, which broke into a gallop, and were going at that pace when they reached the embankment. Defendant's bus was at this time several lengths in front, and immediately afterwards plaintiff's vehicle went over a portion of the embankment, and capsized. His Honor nonsuited plaintiff on the ground of contributory negligence. Mr. Gannon appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. W. J. Foster, instructed by Mr T. M. Williamson, for defendant.

TIERNEY AND ANOTHER V WAVERLEY AND WOOLLAHRA OMNIBUS COMPANY.

Plaintiffs, who carry on the business of butchers on the Waverley Road, sued the defendant company for injury inflicted upon a horse and cart by the negligent and careless driving of one of the company's servants. Plaintiffs' case was, that on the 16th November last, a horse and cart, used by them in their business, was standing in front of the shop, in a position parallel with the shop, when one of the company's three-horse 'buses, driven by Luke Dunn, came down from Waverley, and, in attempting to pass another vehicle, ran into plaintiff's cart, which was seriously damaged by the force of the collision, and also knocked the horse down and passed over its off fore leg, which was split from the hoof up to the fetlock. Before the injury the horse was valued by plaintiffs at £25, and it was now estimated to be worth not more than £10, besides which the animal could not be worked for about three weeks. The cart had also to undergo repair before it could be used. Plaintiffs claimed £100. The evidence adduced on the part of the defendants went to prove that the accident did not occur through the negligence of the driver of their omnibus, but was entirely attributable to the fact that plaintiffs' horse, on seeing the omnibus approaching, became restive, and swerved from the gutter on to the road, rendering a collision inevitable. Evidence was also given that that there was no one in charge of the horse and cart at the time, which, defendants contended, amounted to contributory negligence. His Honor reserved his decision. Mr. Cohen, instructed by Mr. Fawl, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Pigott for defendant.

JOHNSON V. DALY.

This case, which was for goods sold and delivered, was settled, defendant consenting to a verdict for the full amount, £19 15s. 11d., each party paying his own costs. Mr. W. J. Foster, instructed by Mr. T. M. Williamson, for plaintiff; and Mr. J. Curtis for defendant.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

The Police Magistrate was assisted yesterday on the Criminal side by Messrs. Hunt, Moses, and Roseby; and on the Summons side by Messrs. Alexander and Bull.

Several persons, fined for drunkenness, were fined in sums varying from 10s. to 60s. for using obscene language on the way to the lockup.

Mary or Catharine Fuller was summarily convicted of having stolen three dresses, valued at 30s., the property of Margaret O'Brien, and, being described by the police as a notorious thief, received a sentence of six months' imprisonment.

Martin Horen was charged with having in his possession a coat suspected of having been stolen. Detective Dunlop found him on Saturday night offering to sell the coat for sixpence. The price demanded excited the detective's suspicion, and he took him into custody. The prisoner's statement before the Court was anything but satisfactory, and he was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

John Dickinson Malcolm was charged with having inflicted upon Clara Ellen Malcolm, his wife, grievous bodily harm. Prosecutrix deposed that upon the 27th January the defendant, her husband, struck her on the shoulder and breast, knocked her down, and twisted her arms so violently that her right arm was dislocated, and she became insensible; she was taken to the Infirmary, when her arm was dressed. Dr. Williamson, resident medical officer at the Infirmary, deposed that he saw complainant and attended to her; she was suffering from a slight contusion of the right elbow joint and from hysterical excitement; she complained of her shoulder, but he did not find anything the matter with it; it was not dislocated. Committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions. Bail allowed. Mr. Roberts, jun., conducted complainant's case.

William Smith was summarily convicted of having stolen one shirt and one pair of trousers, valued at 10s., the property of John Britton, and was sentenced to be imprisoned, with hard labour, fourteen days.

In the Summons Court, William Bowman, Walter Doran, and John Doran, boys under 13 years of age, appeared on summons to answer the complaint of William Harris, of George-street, which alleged that, on the 30th January, they were found upon his premises for an unlawful purpose. It appeared that the boy John Doran is a mute, and the information as against him was withdrawn. Joseph Kerr deposed that on Sunday the 10th ultimo he saw the defendants throw some timber over complainant's fence into the lane at the rear of the premises, and give them into custody; afterwards, on the advice of sub-inspector M'Kay, he let them go in order to proceed against them by summons. The Bench ordered defendants to be bound, by the recognizance of their father and one other surety in £20, to be of good behaviour for six months.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Yesterday, the Bench in the Charge Court was occupied by Messrs. Hale, Perdriau, Gray, and W. C. Browne. The usual Monday morning's quota of drunkards' cases were disposed off.

Jim Mee, a Chinaman, was charged with cruelly ill-treating three pigs. From the evidence it appeared that on Saturday morning the attention of constable Robins was drawn to the condition of three pigs in a cart driven by the Chinaman. The poor brutes were battened down in the cart, their mouths being tied with strips of rattan, and their legs fastened with rope. The pigs were nearly suffocated, and, when liberated at the Cumberland-street police station, it was found that one of them had been tied in such a manner that it was unable to stand upon its legs for some time. The prisoner pleaded guilty to the charge, and the Bench sentenced him to seven days in gaol, in default of paying a fine of 20s.

Charley Ah Ming, a Chinaman, pleaded guilty to two offences—namely, that of stealing a doormat valued at 7s. 6d., the property of William Slough, and having a doormat in his possession reasonably supposed to have been stolen. The prisoner, who, it appeared, had been in the habit of stealing doormats and other portable articles from the doors of houses, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment on each charge.

Mary Lahiff, was adjudged to be guilty of stealing a fowl, the property of William Raines, and was fined 20s.

Edward Moulding, a youth, was ordered to be sent to prison for a period of six months with hard labour on a charge of vagrancy. The police gave him an unenviable character.

Isaac Little was also sentenced to six months' imprisonment on a similar charge.

Joseph Denham was fined 5s., or, in default of payment, to suffer four days in gaol, for wilfully breaking three panes of glass, of the value of 5s., the property of Robert Noden.

In the Summons Court (before Mr. Vincent Brown and Mr. Boyce), William Scott was summoned by Thomas Levers for an unlawful assault. From the evidence it appeared that, at an early hour on Sunday morning, the 30th January, the complainant was at Barrack-hill, Paddington, in company with his brother, when the defendant struck him in the face with a whip which he had in his hand. The evidence of the complainant as to the assault was corroborated by Edmund Levers. The defendant sought to show that he received provocation; but the Bench considered the charge had been substantiated, and ordered the defendant to pay a fine of £5, with costs, or to suffer two months' imprisonment.

WHERE SHALL THE COURT-HOUSE BE?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As the people of Newtown appear quite unable to agree as to which is the best site for the long-talked of Court-house—some contending for the King-street, and some for the Station-street position—I will take it for granted that a good suggestion for the solution of the difficulty will be gratefully welcomed by all parties.

The Newtown police district is a rather extensive one, including, I believe (besides Newtown, Camperdown, and St. Peters), Leichhardt, Petersham, Marrickville, Summer Hill, Ashfield, Canterbury, Belmore, Enfield, Croydon, Five Dock, Burwood, Homebush, &c., &c., and my idea is that a court-house for all these places ought to be elsewhere than at Newtown. It seems to me that if we are to have an establishment of this kind outside the city it should be a little further from the city, and that Petersham would be a very convenient position for the same. My suggestion, therefore is, that the Petersham people should bestir themselves, get up a deputation to the Minister of Justice, and try to secure the court-house as an "ornament" to their borough. Let them do this, and I feel certain they will be supported by their neighbours both north, south, and west of them.

THE SKUTHORPE LIBEL CASE.

(From the Western Champion, Blackall, Queensland.)

On Thursday, January 20, before the Police Magistrate and Mr. G. B. Stephens, William Henry Campbell was charged with maliciously publishing in the Western Champion the following libellous article with intent to injure John Skuthorpe:—"Alleged Discovery of Leichhardt Relics.—We have received telegrams from Sydney asking for a confirmation of certain statements made in the telegraphic columns of the daily Press relative to the alleged discovery of important Leichhardt relics by Mr. John Skuthorpe, at present staying in Blackall. Mr. Skuthorpe asserts that he has discovered Classon's diary, and also that of Leichhardt; that Leichhardt perished from thirst on the banks of a saltwater creek, while Classon went to look for water; and that Classon had been living among the blacks to within three years ago. Mr. Jack Skuthorpe further alleges that he has in his possession a telescope and compass belonging to the party, and that at any time he can unearth their bones. He has not shown us the relics, nor anything in confirmation of his statement. Therefore the story can only be accepted as authentic on the word of the narrator. As Mr. Skuthorpe bears the reputation of being the champion truth-teller of Queensland, of course we do not feel inclined to impugn his veracity. We know that he has received a telegram from the Lands Department at Sydney informing him that he will have all his expenses paid, and requesting him to keep his story secret, and seal up the relics, and we know that the Sydney Bulletin is offering a thousand pounds reward for genuine information concerning the fate of the explorer; but whether the N.S. Wales Government will get the relics, or J. S. the thousand pounds, is a question which we leave those who know Mr. Skuthorpe better than we do to answer."

Mr. Piers appeared for the complainant.

John Richard Skuthorpe deposed: I am a grazier; I have seen an article in the Western Champion newspaper having reference to myself and some Leichhardt relics; the article was published in the issue of the 14th instant; I purchased a copy of that issue at the office of the paper; I heard defendant give evidence in the police court on the 18th instant; in answer to questions put by my solicitor he admitted that he was in the habit of perusing proof sheets of all articles which went through the Press; I heard him admit that he was publisher and proprietor of the Champion newspaper; I have read the article put forth in the information; I read as that article a paragraph commencing, "As Mr. Skuthorpe bears the reputation of being the champion truth-teller of Queensland," &c.; I understand the words "champion truth-teller" to imply "champion liar," and understand the sentence to be intended to convey to the public that I am the champion liar of Queensland; the article, as a whole, I consider calculated to seriously damage my reputation in the estimation of the public, and tending to bring me into contempt generally; I am not employed by any person or public company or persons; I have discovered those Leichhardt relics on my own account as a private individual; an article has appeared in the Sydney Morning Herald on the subject of these relics; I have had communication with an individual connected with the Lands Department of New South Wales on the subject of these relics; I have had no dealings with the defendant prior to the appearance of the article complained of, therefore the defendant has not had any opportunity of knowing whether I was a liar or the reverse; I consider the article will tend to shake belief in my testimony in the minds of persons in New South Wales with whom I have been in correspondence on the subject of these relics; prior to appearance of article complained of I asked one of defendant's employees to insert a letter in the Western Champion on the subject of the Leichhardt relics; I was led to believe that the letter would be published; it was never returned to me; I subsequently had a conversation with defendant at O'Malley's Hotel; defendant showed me a telegram which he said referred to the Leichhardt relics; he asked me to give him some information on the matter; I walked away, as it did not suit me to divulge anything concerning the relics; next morning the article complained of appeared, but my letter did not appear; I gave defendant no cause to publish this damaging article, and can assign no reason for his doing so; have heard the article commented upon in public; it was read aloud by Mr. Brodie at the breakfast-table of O'Malley's Hotel; heard one person say that he understood "champion truth-teller" to imply that I was the "champion liar" of Queensland; I consider that in consequence of that article my veracity will be questioned until I arrive in Sydney.

Cross-examined by defendant: In your evidence given in court two days ago you did not acknowledge having read the proofs of the particular article complained of; heard you say you were the publisher of the Champion, but not of this particular copy of the paper; the words "champion truth-teller" I did not construe literally because of the general tone of the article; if those words had been used of anybody else I should have construed them in the manner I have done, notwithstanding that the character of the person alluded to might be above reproach; I am acting as a private individual; I never asserted that I was employed by the N.S.W. Government; before I went out west I was in communication with a gentleman connected with the N.S.W. Government; I sent a telegram to Mr. du Faur a day or two before the article was published; I don't remember having had any dealings or communication with you prior to the appearance of the article in the Champion; you told me at O'Malley's hotel, on January 13, that you had received my letter and "it was all right;" you said nothing to me to lead me to suppose you bore malice towards me; you asked me for authentic information in a temperate manner; I refused to give it you; I believe I once spoke to you in your office; I believe Mr. Monahan was present; I was doing some business with him in Mr. Sheppard's office adjoining the printing office; I remember saying something about Leichhardt's compass, that it was not like the one in the office; don't remember saying anything about Leichhardt's diary; I have not divulged to any persons in Blackall any of the secrets connected with my trip; what I have said is true; I asserted in Blackall that I had discovered relics of Leichhardt; I also said that I had discovered Classon's diary, and that it was in a partial state of preservation; I also said I had found Leichhardt's diary in a tin can near the roots of a coolebah tree; I also said the letter L was cut on the tree; I saw the cut; I made some arrangements for showing these relics; I made an appointment with the Police Magistrate to show the relics; I did not keep the appointment because I did not think it would be giving you fair play; that was not the reason I gave to the Police Magistrate; I had the relics on my person at the time I spoke to the Police Magistrate; the reason I did not show them to him was because I was beyond the time appointed; the appointment I deferred until next day; I did not keep that appointment because I had instructions from Mr. Du Faur not to show the relics to any one; I swear that to the best of my belief I never asserted to any one in town that I was in communication with the N.S.W. Government. [Some other immaterial evidence relative to what defendant heard in his bedroom at O'Malley's hotel is omitted.]

Peter O'Malley, sworn, stated that he considered the words, "Mr. Skuthorpe bears the reputation of being the champion truth-teller," &c., were intended to convey the insuendo that Mr. Skuthorpe was the champion liar of the colony; he considered the general tone of the article damaging to complainant's reputation, and calculated to bring him into public contempt; he looked at the printed document [exhibited] headed "Latest Telegrams;" he saw a paragraph headed "Fracas between Skuthorpe and the editor of the Champion;" do not know who wrote that telegram.

Cross-examined by defendant: The sarcastic tone of the article throughout leads me to suppose that the term "champion truth-teller" is used ironically; Skuthorpe informed me that he had found relics of Leichhardt and offered to show them to me; he appointed an evening upon which to show me the relics; he did not keep the appointment. The questions, "What is the character generally borne by Skuthorpe as to truthfulness?" and "In your opinion is the epithet 'champion truth-teller' applicable to Skuthorpe?" witness declined to answer.

Complainant, recalled, proved purchase of copy of paper from L. Bacchi, who confirmed the evidence.

William Haydon, J. M. Melville, and S. Neville gave evidence similar to that of P. O'Malley. In cross-examination, Mr. Neville admitted that he had an appointment with Mr. Skuthorpe for Sunday, the 9th instant, when complainant was to exhibit the relics; he did not keep the appointment; it was a hot day, and he was not much interested in them.

R. A. Ranking was called to prove that defendant on previous occasions admitted that he was publisher of the Champion.

For the defence

John Abern, sub-inspector of police at Blackall, deposed: I have resided in the district some 14 years; I have known Skuthorpe for some years; I know nothing against his character as regards honesty; plaintiff does not bear the reputation of being a truthful man, not that I say he is capable of committing perjury: I speak of his reputation only; I know nothing of my personal knowledge.

Arthur Sheppard, stock and station agent, deposed: Have had several conversations with Skuthorpe about his journeys out West; he told me he had Leichhardt's diary and telescope; that the latter was presented to Leichhardt by Governor Macquarie; he said there was an inscription on the telescope to that effect; Skuthorpe said he found the relics at the foot of a coolebah tree, on a salt water creek west of the Herbert; he said the tin case was from 20 inches to two feet below the surface; he said where the relics were buried there was a cross stream, and the case was placed among the roots of the tree; he said that he had found Classon's grave, and that he derived his information from the blacks. Question: Did you believe this statement? I do not believe anything until I see proof of it. Plaintiff did not tell me that he had received an intimation from an agent of the N.S.W. Government that his expenses would be paid.

Defendant was committed for trial at the Rockhampton Circuit Court in April next. Bail allowed.

COMING NAVAL CHANGES.—In the course of a speech at Reading two forthcoming changes in the navy, the one affecting the officers, the others the sailors, were shadowed forth by Mr. Shaw-Lefevre. He affirmed that five years' experience of the present system of nomination to naval cadetships has demonstrated both the physical and intellectual inferiority of the lads thus secured for the public service, compared with those who were obtained by competition. The second reform spoken of is the total abolition of corporal punishment in the navy. The chief argument put forward for this change is that the number of such punishments having "dwindled to a very few cases in each year," there cannot be much use in retaining it as an effective aid to discipline.

MARINE BOARD.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7.

Present: Captains Hixson (president), Fox, M'Lean, Robertson, Jenkins, J. B. Watt, and Lieutenant Lindeman (secretary).

THE STRANDING OF THE COLLAROY.

The business before the Board was an inquiry into the stranding of the steamer Collaroy, on the morning of January 20. From the evidence taken, it appeared that when the steamer left Newcastle, the night was beautifully fine and clear; that after leaving Nobby's, the usual course, S. by W., was given by the captain, and steered until he went below, off Terrigal Point; that on the chief officer relieving him, the same course was given, and that in about half-an-hour this course was altered to S.S.W., and when off Broken Bay the course S. by W. was again given to the helmsman. There was a conflict of testimony between the captain and the mate as to the authority of the latter to change the courses, and the chief officer also denied having given the course S.S.W. to the helmsman, stating that on account of a fog which the vessel ran into, he kept her half a point off the S. by W. course given, and gave the helmsman 3¼ west as his course. After about a quarter of an hour's deliberation the following decision was arrived at:—"That the stranding was caused by the wrongful act or default of R. R. Drew, the mate, for having altered the course without the authority of the master, and by the wrongful act or default of Martin Thompson, the master, in not having taken proper precautions for the safety of the vessel whilst navigating his vessel in the vicinity of the land during a heavy fog." In connection with this report, the Board call Messrs. Drew and Thompson before them, on Friday morning next, at 10 o'clock, to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled or suspended.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

The Acting Coroner (Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P.) held an inquest yesterday morning at the Quarryman's Arms Hotel, Pyrmont, touching the death of an infant named William John Ryan, aged seven weeks. The evidence adduced showed that Mrs. Ryan, the mother of the child, her husband, and another child besides deceased, went to bed at about half-past 11 o'clock on Saturday night, and that deceased was then in good health. About 6 o'clock on Sunday morning Mrs. Ryan got up, and went downstairs, leaving the child in bed, apparently asleep. She went upstairs again at 7 o'clock, and took up the child, which then appeared to be unconscious. Every effort was made to restore animation, but without avail, and when Dr. Dar arrived he pronounced life to be extinct. The post-mortem showed that death had resulted from asphyxia, probably from being overlain, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect.

A second inquest was held at Schroeder's Hotel, King-street, touching the death of George M'Nair Harkness, who died suddenly on the previous day. Margaret Smith Harkness deposed that the dead body viewed by the Coroner and jury was that of her husband; he was 26 years of age, a native of Windsor, England, and a gentleman living on his means; she was married to him on the 30th of August, 1875, at the Registrar's Office, Auckland, but they separated about October, 1876, and had
